Political Overtures Mark Nixon's Trip To New Hampshire

CONCORD, N. H. (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon broke ground Saturday for a giant flood control dam — and perhaps for an entrance into New Hampshire's early presidential primary next March.

His trip to the state was billed as nonpolitical but he was surrounded during the day by some of the state's chief political leaders including Gov. Wesley Powell and U.S. Sens. Styles Bridges and Norris Cotton.

Sen. Cotton told newsmen later he considers Nixon—whom he supports for president—"is running like a startled deer."

He said "there is a tremendous undercurfent of support for Nixon" but he added that Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York "can catch fire and he has the personality to do it."

"There is no question that both Nixon and Rockefeller will be on our primary ballot," Cotton said.

It was New Hampshire voters who gave Nixon 22,000 unsolicited write-in votes for vice president in the 1956 presidential primary and started the downfall of a "dump Nixon" drive headed by Harold E. Stassen. And it was the big preferential write-in vote the state Republicans gave Eisenhower in 1952 which lured him from his Paris NATO headquarters to embark on an active campaign for the presidential nomination.

The ground-breaking in West Hopkinton was a simple ceremony There were a few speeches and then the vice president touched a button which set off a dynamite charge in the first blast for the 30-million-dollar Merrimack River flood control project.

Then Nixon and the other dignitaries turned a few shovels of earth.

Steel Strike Maneuvers Take On Urgent Note

Viewed As Attempt To Beat T-H Action

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Maneuvering in the 81-day-old steel strike took on a note of urgency Saturday as negotiators tried to beat possible Taft-Hartley action to get the 500,000 strikers back in the mills.

The United Steelworkers summoned its powerful Wage Policy Committee to meet here at 10 a.m. Monday.

David J. McDonald, president of the USW, also summoned the union's International Executive Board to meet in an unusual Sunday session at 2 p.m.

Some observers were optimistic over the developments. But others saw no concrete moves leading to a quick end of the strike which has resulted in the loss of millions of dollars in wages and production.

The 170-man Wage Policy Committee can either reject or accept a new contract. The Executive Board makes recommendations to the Wage Policy Committee.

There are widespread but unconfirmed reports the industry is willing to give the USW an eight-cent-an-hour annual package in a two-year contract, provided the union permits management more control over local working conditions. These conditions vary from company to company.

The reported offer would give eight cents for pension and welfare benefits for one year with no pay raise as such. In the second year eight cents would go for wages.

McDonald and R. Conrad Cooper, the industry's chief negotiator, would not say if any offer is on the contract table. They met for an hour and 20 minutes Saturday morning, maintained a news blackout, and went their separate ways.

Although McDonald and Cooper refused comment, one industry source close to the negotiations said no money package had been put on the bargaining table.

While there was a glimmer of optimism, some persons close to the scene pointed out that the USW's Executive Board and the Wage Policy Committee had met several times during the strike.

McDonald first announced the meeting of the 40-man Executive Board—made up of the union's international officers, General Counsel Arthur Goldberg and district directors. The union chief said merely he wanted to give the board a "situation report."

Nearly two hours later, after announcing the Monday assembly of the Wage Policy Committee, McDonald issued a formal statement.

"We have called a meeting of the union's International Wage Policy Committee for 10 a.m Monday," the statement said. . . "This is in keeping with our policy of keeping the membership fully informed on the situation in the steel negotiations through frequent meetings with their duly elected representatives."

Macmillan Predicts Victory But Latest Public Polls Call It Tossup

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Macmillan predicted Saturday his Conservatives would win Britain's boiling-hot election next Thursday. But latest public opinion polls show the outcome nearly a tossup between the Conservatives and Laborites.

"I have become more and more confident of the result," Macmillan told a news conference.

With only five days left, the polls showed 39.5 per cent of the voters behind the Conservatives and 38 per cent for Hugh Gaitskell's Labor party.

A little more than two weeks ago—when Macmillan called the election on the crest of a popularity wave and in the flush of President Eisenhower's visit here—his Conservatives appeared a sure thing to win an unprecedented third term and run Britain for five more years.

At that time the polls, usually accurate in forecasting elections in Britain, gave the Conservatives a 7.5 per cent margin as against the present 1.5.

It may be the 18 per cent of undecided voters who will determine which party controls the 630-member House of Commons and forms the next government.

Macmillan and Gaitskell both earmarked in final campaign swings this weekend through the hinterlands.

They were slugging it out on the main issues—the Conservatives' claim to the right of representing Britain at an East-West summit meeting and Labor's promises to raise old age pensions and do away with sales taxes on necessities.

Said the urbane, 65-year-old Macmillan: "I do not see how a party which is split, as the Laborites are, on every major issue, can possibly form a government with a large enough majority to play an effective role at the summit."

Macmillan, former defense minister and foreign secretary, took over as Prime Minister in January 1957, when ailing Sir Anthony Eden stepped down in the wake of the Suez invasion crisis.

Gaitskell, in a campaign speech in Liverpool, argued that the Conservatives were "hopping mad" about Labor's pledge of sales tax relief.

"They are very excited because we have dared to say we will take the purchase tax off necessities," he said. "That's because they favor just the opposite—reducing the tax on luxuries and making up the revenue by putting it on necessities.

Gaitskell hammered the party's campaign attacks on the Conservatives as the party responsible for the British-French invasion of the Suez Canal Zone in 1956.

Ezra Benson Takes Pulpit In Small Church In Moscow

Editor's Note — The following occurred in Moscow Thursday. U.S. correspondents present did not attempt to report the story until after leaving the Soviet Union.

MOSCOW (AP) — Thursday night was a special occasion at the Central Baptist church, located on a back street within the shadow of the Kremlin. About a thousand Russians assembled there to worship God in participation with a group of touring Americans.

Worship of God is not encouraged in the Soviet Union. Its rulers require the teaching of atheism.

One of the Americans was invited to take the pulpit. He looked over the congregation. What he saw obviously moved him. With emotion he told of his visit in Moscow and what he thought of the Russian people.

"I hope," he said, "that you will be blessed. Be good citizens of your country.

"But," he added, "be true to your convictions."

The congregation listened intently as his words were translated.

"God lives," he added. "I know that He lives—that Jesus is the Christ, the redeemer of the world. Be not afraid and keep the Commandments."

The speaker was U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson, an elder of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon). He is touring Europe with three members of his family, four department officials and 10 newsmen on a good will and trade tour.

His words had a powerful impact. Tears rolled from the eyes of worshipers. At the finish, the congregation arose and thanked him with the hymn "God Be With You 'Til We Meet Again." Then they waved handkerchiefs in farewell.

As the Americans made their way to the door, scores of hands thrust out to grasp those of the departing visitors in an action that spoke more than words.

The Americans entered their cars with not a dry eye among them. Finally a seasoned newsman broke the silence.

"I believe they were the only really happy people we saw in Russia," he said.

But his appraisal was tempered by the fact that the congregation was largely of the waning generation. Few young people were present.

Prospects Appear Bleak For Ending Dock Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Prospects appeared bleak Saturday for any early settlement of a three-day dock strike that has tied up more than 200 freighters in East and Gulf Coast ports.

Freight piers stood idle from Maine to Texas as employers and longshoremen held fast to their deadlocked positions in a contract dispute. The dispute led some 85,000 workers to walk out Thursday.

Both sides are to meet Monday with federal mediators — but not with each other.

The New York Shipping Assn., an employer group representing steamship and stevedoring firms, has said it will not resume negotiations until Oct. 15.

That is the date to which the International Longshoremens Assn. originally agreed to extend the contract that expired Sept. 30.

Leaders of the ILA, an independent union, have said the men will not return to their jobs until a contract is negotiated.

At Palm Springs, Calif., where President Eisenhower is vacationing, White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said in reply to questions that the strike has not been referred to the White House.

Hagerty added, however, that Eisenhower "quite naturally is aware of the strike."

Rymans Cited As 'Young Couple Of Year' By Grange

FREEPORT, Ill. (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. James Ryman, who operate a 240-acre farm near Belvidere in Boone County, have been named Young Couple of the Year by the Illinois State Grange.

The Rymans were cited Friday night by Eugene Stouffer of Milledgeville, chairman of the Illinois Grange youth committee, as the Grange prepared to wind up its three-day convention.

In ceremonies Friday night, David Lembke of Mascoutah was crowned king of the state Grange and Miss Teresa Hoelzer of Waltham was named queen. Albert Ebel III, a 17-year-old Marengo High School student, won the Grange-sponsored public speaking contest, and Nancy Toreson, a member of the Spring Creek Grange in Henry County, was named winner of the highway safety essay contest.

Rains Deluge Texas, More Snow Falls In Colorado Rockies

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rain tapered off over flood-stricken sections of northeastern Oklahoma Saturday, but fresh downpours washed Texas and more snow blanketed the Colorado Rockies.

Hundreds of north-central and northeastern Oklahoma residents remained out of their homes in the wake of four days of heavy rains. Although the rainfall had slackened to a drizzle and stopped in some communities, many evacuees had no hope of returning home before Sunday.

Abilene and Wichita Falls, in north-central Texas, were drenched with up to five inches of rain, and minor flash flooding was expected in the San Angelo area. The rainy pattern extended northeastward into Arkansas and Missouri.

Skies cleared at Denver, blanketed by 16½ inches of snow during the week, but fresh snow fell on Colorado Springs to the south and in the Trinidad area near the Colorado-New Mexico state line. Colorado Springs already measured more than 30 inches of snow from a storm that extended into the sixth day.

Streams crested and began to recede in north-central Oklahoma during the day, but heavy rains were expected to produce flooding on the north and south forks of the Canadian River in eastern counties by Sunday. And the situation remained serious in the northeast part of the state.

Stillwater, in north-central Oklahoma, was no longer isolated by the high waters. One highway remained closed, but hundreds of persons still were unable to get back to their homes. National Guard and Army reserve troops supervised rescue work in the college town.

The worst appeared to be over at Guthrie and Blackwell, north of Oklahoma City, although 50 blocks of Blackwell remained inundated.

In the northeast, Pawnee and Skiatook were cut off by high waters, and Avant evacuated half of its 400 residents. The Arkansas River crested at 1½ feet above flood stage in Tulsa at midday and flooded some streets.

Cooler air moved southward over the plains and into the Midwest, where skies were mostly cloudy, but it was generally sunny and pleasant in the Far West and much of the East.

President's Cold Beginning To Yield To Sun

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—President Eisenhower's nagging cold is beginning to yield to Southern California's warm sunshine and dry climate, his doctor reported Saturday.

Maj. Gen. Howard McC. Snyder, the White House physician, sent word to newsmen that in his opinion the sunshine and the desert weather generally "has been beneficial to the President's cold."

But Snyder, in a message relayed by White House press secretary James C. Hagerty, added that the cold which brought Eisenhower to this resort area for an eight-day stay has not disappeared.

"He still has it," Snyder said.

For the third day in a row Eisenhower turned up shortly before 9 a.m. at the El Dorado Country Club for 18 holes of golf. Again there was not a cloud in the sky and the temperature already was in the low 80s.

In advance of the round Eisenhower worked at Allen's home at nearby La Quinta, Calif., on government business. A pouch of official papers arrived by plane from Washington Friday.

Cuban Airliner Seized--Open New Security Drive

HAVANA (AP)—Seizure of a Cuban airliner by grenade-toting passengers who forced the pilot to fly to Miami brought on a new security drive against antigovernment activities here Saturday.

Air Force Chief Juan Almeida issued orders prohibiting night flights of private planes over Cuba without prior government clearance.

Air force headquarters authorized police riflemen to open fire Friday night on two unidentified light planes flying over suburban Havana. The action forced the control tower at Havana Airport to detour a Cubana Airlines turboprop plane making a landing run over the area. It is not known if the intruding planes were hit.

If the normal pattern is followed, government authorities will reimpose personal searches of passengers flying Cuba's internal airlines in order to prevent individuals seeking to flee Cuba from carrying arms aboard the planes.

The routine search for all passengers on internal flights has been imposed several times since Prime Minister Fidel Castro took over the country Jan. 1. Seizing commercial airliners was one of the favorite tactics of Castro supporters during the revolution and had been adopted by anti-Castro groups.

It was not known if the three Cubans who forced a Cubana Airlines plane to fly to Miami Friday night were Castro fugitives. However, they asked U.S. immigration authorities for political asylum. U.S. officials agreed to withhold information on the trip at their request. They were identified as Esteban Betancourt, 47; his daughter, Florida, 16; and Osvaldo Hernandez, 28.

SANTA IS VICTIM OF CUBAN REVOLUTION

HAVANA (AP)—Santa Claus may fall victim to Cuban revolutionary zeal and austerity. Merchants have been given a Castro government plan for a "typically Cuban Christmas" this year. It urges that Cuban-made decorations and greeting cards be used and that the Three Kings replace "Santa Claus because (he) is foreign to our customs and of recent importation."

THREE PRESIDENTIAL HOPEFULS TO SPEAK AT UAW CONVENTION

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers said today three U.S. senators regarded as leading possibilities for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1960 have accepted invitations to speak at the UAW convention in Atlantic City, N.J.

They are John Kennedy (D-Mass), Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn) and Stuart Symington (D-Mo).

UAW President Walter P. Reuther also invited Vice President Richard M. Nixon and New York's Gov. Nelson Rockfeller as potential Republican nominees to address the convention Oct. 9-16.

"Thus far, Mr. Nixon and Gov. Rockefeller have been unable to accept because of previously scheduled engagements," the union said in a statement.

Average Citizen May Not Be Affected By Du Pont Decision

CHICAGO (AP) — A court decision that Du Pont can retain its ownership of 3½ billion dollars worth of General Motors stock may affect the prices of the securities of both companies but should have little direct influence on the lives or affairs of the average citizen.

The decision, in general, maintains the relationship that has existed between the two industrial giants. It also sets up certain safeguards against General Motors' granting preferential treatment to the products Du Pont manufactures.

U.S. Dist. Judge Walter J. La Buy ruled Friday that Du Pont could retain its possessions of 63 million shares of General Motors stock but must pass the voting rights along to its individual shareholders.

The government, which started the antitrust action 10 years ago, has not announced whether it will appeal. The government had asked that Du Pont completely dispose of its GM holdings by distributing the bulk of the shares to its own shareholders and selling the remainder in the open market.

One spokesman, Charles McGoldrick, head of the research department of Walston & Co., called it "the most bullish decision that could have occurred under the circumstances. It removes a cloud which has been hanging over both General Motors and Du Pont."

But the decision should have little if any direct impact on the affairs of the average man on the street or even on the purchasers of General Motors' cars and refrigerators or Du Pont's nylon stockings and other chemical products.

The defense contended during the trial that an undesirable impact could have resulted if the court had granted the government's request for a forced sale of GM stock.

One witness testified that this would depress the value of GM stock to the point where General Motors could not successfully raise the funds needed to maintain its position in the automotive industry by selling its stock in the open market.

Judge La Buy held that the government had not shown that General Motors gave preferential treatment to Du Pont's products.

He said: "The government's principal concern appears to be that Du Pont's continuing financial interest in General Motors will force (it) to see that General Motors is the prime, if not exclusive, recipient of Du Pont's research activities. The government does not suggest that there is any evidence that Du Pont has favored General Motors over General Motors' competitors. Such a charge was made in the original complaint but was never proven.

CANADIAN AIRLINER CRASH LANDS, 2 HURT

The plane carried 34 passengers and 4 crew members. The pilot and a stewardess were seriously injured.

The plane skidded for 300 feet along the slippery runway before crashing into a fence.

Ten ambulances and rescue equipment were rushed to the scene and everybody was taken to a hospital but only the pilot and the stewardess were defained.

Report Diploma Mills In U.S. Doing Land-Office Business

WASHINGTON (AP)—Diploma mills which sell college degrees and diplomas to anyone are doing a land-office business in this country, the American Council on Education said Saturday.

The council said the phony colleges are duping thousands of foreign students, causing foreigners to question the integrity and quality of all U.S. education and damaging U.S. prestige abroad.

Reporting on a year-long study of the problem, the council said the diploma mills enroll as many as 750,000 students annually and take in some 75 million dollars a year.

The American Council on Education is a private organization with a claimed membership of 1,046 educational institutions. Its report said the diploma mill problem isn't a new one.

"This absurd situation, with its international overtones, has embarrassed the United States for more than 120 years," it added.

The report emphasized, however, that there are more than 450 legitimate home study schools in the United States, all members of the National Home Study Council and serving some 1 to 1½ million students annually.

The council said its survey had turned up at least 200 degree mills operating in 37 states. But it also quoted a California official as estimating there are at least 100 such institutions in that state alone.

As an example of how it said the diploma mills are hurting U.S. prestige abroad, the report cited the case of a young man in Colombia. He wrote to the U.S. consul in Bogota complaining that promised materials and instructions for a course in radio and electronics had never arrived. He called this a "wicked and harmful" trick, saying his father had sold the family home to raise money for the course.

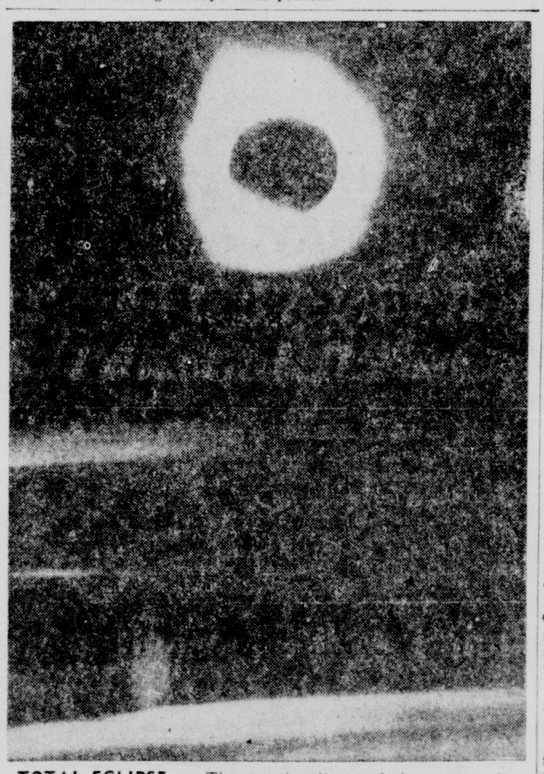

The council also said the government of West Germany has one official who spends much of his time investigating traffic in "black market" degrees. It quoted him as saying the U.S. degree mills are the largest such operation in the world.

Religious Leaders See Family Life As One Of Prime Forces In Religion Today

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

One of the prime forces of religion in the eyes of its leaders today is not the public pulpit—but the private parlor.

Churches have moved increasingly to get a foothold in the living room. The accent is on the home.

"This is characteristic of all branches of the Christian church today," says the Rev. Dr. Richard E. Lentz of Indianapolis, a leading authority in the field. Similar emphasis also is current in Judaism.

Among the various denominations, scores of programs and services have sprung up centering on family life as a basic framework of faith.

"Togetherness" — keeping the domestic unit intact as a cradle of religious growth — has become a church watchword.

Methodist Bishop Hazen G. Werner, of Columbus, Ohio, says the tendency of modern social organization to detract from the home, and splinter its corporate life, has intensified the church counter-efforts.

"What religion is to do, it cannot accomplish without the family," he says.

"The church must see to it that religious instruction goes on continuously in the home. You can't grow Christian character in a 30-minute period of the church school class held once a week."

Denominations have set up special departments, and put out a steady stream of literature on the subject. Local congregations have joined the push. Among the developments:

1. Special classes and discussion groups for parents on their responsibilities in the spiritual nurture of children and each other.

2. Greatly increased premarital and marital counseling by ministers, stressing the sacred character of marriage.

3. The spread of "church family night" sessions, either replacing the former Sunday evening evangelistic meetings or held in midweek, usually with a common meal and social activities including adults and their young.

4. Encouragement of the family altar for daily joint prayer at home.

5. New steps to render church help to families, including credit unions, church employment bureaus and cooperative purchasing in some cases.

6. Family-life institutes, clinics, camps and conferences, both for leaders and laity, have flourished across the country, with hundreds held each year.

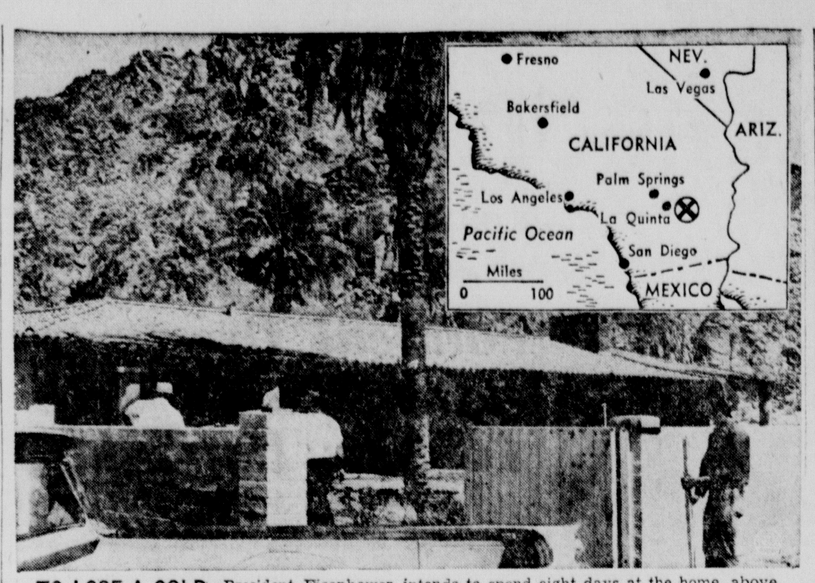

7. Several denominations, including the United Presbyterians and Congregational Christians, have made extensive surveys lately into family conditions and habits, gauging programs to meet the needs.

8. Regular visiting by pastors in homes, an old custom that had dwindled, is being revived. Seminaries have evolved new courses to guide clergymen in stimulating religion in the home setting.

9. A trend toward joint church worship for the whole family, rather than separate services for age groups. This is in the developing stage, with approaches varied.

Some churches, with two Sunday services, make one of them a family service with family members sharing leadership.

10. Neighborhood Bible study and prayer groups, meeting in homes, sometimes interdenominationally, often with several such groups from one congregation.

TO LOSE A COLD—President Eisenhower intends to spend eight days at the home, above, of his golf and bridge crony, George V. Allen. Allen's white stucco ranch home is located at La Quinta, Calif. (Inset map.) The President took the vacation to rid himself of a head cold which he picked up during his European tour and which has resisted constant medical attention. The house, which has two swimming pools—one of them heated—is located 10 minutes from a golf course.

With The Girl Scouts

Girl Scout calendars are now available at the Scout office on North East street for any registered troops in this Council to sell. This is a quick way for the girls to make money for their troops since each calendar sold means 15c for the troop treasury. The calendars are in demand because they are excellent for keeping appointments posted. They will be sold only during the month of October so come in right away for a supply for your troop.

Junior High Rally

Junior High Girl Scouts and Junior High girls interested in joining Girl Scouts are invited to a rally especially for them on Friday, Oct. 9, from 3:30 to 5:00 p.m. in the Jonathan Turner cafeteria. This rally is for Morgan county girls. There will be no charge for refreshments and the program will be given by the Roundup girls. Members of the program committee of the Board of Directors are making arrangements for the big event.

Mothers' meetings are being held in counties outside Morgan this coming week in preparation for organizing new Girl Scout troops and reorganizing established troops. On Tuesday, Oct. 6, there will be a meeting of mothers of girls in the Washington grade school at Beardstown from 10 to 11:15 a.m. at the school.

Bluffs 3rd grade mothers will meet at 2 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 7, at the grade school cafeteria for the purpose of organizing new troops

Basic Training

An important follow-up to these mothers' meetings is the basic training for leaders. Please make a note of the dates so that you can keep your calendar clear for this vital training. Brownie leaders will have their basic training session on Tuesday, Oct. 20, at the Scout office from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m. Intermediate leaders will meet for the same hours at the office on Wednesday, Oct. 21.

Cass County leaders will meet Tuesday, Oct. 8, at 9:30 a.m. in Virginia. This is a regularly scheduled neighborhood meeting.

Members of the finance committee of the Board of Directors will meet Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the Scout office.

Virginia Gronseth, Carol Abbott and Gail Ward, delegates from this Council who attended the Senior Girl Scout Roundup in Colorado last summer, have been busy giving programs, telling of their varied experiences, displaying their many swap items acquired in trading with girls from other parts of the world and showing excellent colored slides of the camp. The girls have appeared before the local Rotary and Kiwanis clubs and are scheduled to give a program for the Lions club in Jacksonville the latter part of the month. They also gave programs at the Morgan-Scott Girl Scout rally and the fall Council meeting.

Mrs. William Gross, Mrs. Howard Choate, Mrs. Ralph Sullivan and Mrs. Robert Hartman spent Monday and Tuesday of last week attending a program institute in Springfield. They received a great deal of inspiration and quantities of material which will be used in the Council this year and next.

Advanced Basketry

Eight persons took advantage of the advanced basketry workshop conducted by Mrs. Ralph Sullivan at the Scout office last Wednesday. There was much enthusiasm shown for this popular craft and many Girl Scouts will be instructed in the art this fall.

Members of the program committee of the Board of Directors met Friday at the office to plan the junior high rally and other program activities. Mrs. William Gross, chairman, gave a report on the Program Institute held in Springfield.

Intermediate Girl Scout Troop No. 20 of Salem Lutheran school spent two nights last weekend at New Salem. The girls had tents and all needed camping equipment with them but when they arrived at the campsite the downpour showed no signs of abating so they set up "camp" in one of the barracks. Anxious mothers drove to New Salem Saturday to get the girls because of the storms and tornado warnings. But none of them wanted to come home so the mothers returned without them and finally brought them home Sunday. Miss Lee Welkley and Miss Milly Mosier, MacMurray College students, accompanied them on the trip.

New York Gallery Exhibit To Open In City Monday

"The Wall," a traveling exhibition from the Bertha Schaefer Gallery of New York City opens at the Strawn Art Center Monday, Oct. 5. This is the first exhibition of the 1959-60 season, and will be showing through Oct. 17.

The exhibition is composed of contemporary wall treatments executed in various materials, as a suggestion for decorative and architectural use.

Sun Screen Model

Among the participating artists in the exhibition are Robert Cronbach and Sue Fuller. Mr. Cronbach, a sculptor, has in the exhibit a scale model of the bronze Sun Screen he designed for the new Dorr-Oliver building at Stamford, Conn. A full size section of the bronze Sun Screen in actual materials accompanies the scale model.

"String Composition No. 85," by Sue Fuller, represents a unique adaptation of synthetic threads in a contemporary wall treatment. She does something with string apparently no one else has thought of doing before. Synthetic strings are stretched across wooden frames creating colorful patterns which can be hung on the wall as pictures or stood on the floor as partitions.

Many Contributors

Other artists in this exhibition are: Wolfgang Behl (polyester relief panels); Madi Blach (mosaic panels); Zvi Gall (polychromed plaster).

Dirk Hubers (terra cotta relief panels); Warren Jennerjahn (glass mosaic); Joseph Konzal (bronze relief).

Costantino Nivola (sand sculpture panels); Peter Ostuni (vitreous enamel panels); Hugh Wiley (mosaic plaster panel); and Frans Wildenhain (ceramic tile).

Association Preview

Members of the Jacksonville Art Association are invited to a preview coffee of this exhibition on Sunday, Oct. 4. Gallery hours are 3-5 p.m. and 7-9 p.m., Monday through Friday, and 2-5 p.m. on Sundays.

Her condition is fair.

History Recalled By Founders' Day At MacMurray Oct. 16

A half century has passed since President Joseph R. Harker of Illinois Woman's College first established Founders' Day, Nov. 5, 1909.

It will be the 51st such observance Friday, Oct. 16, when President Louis W. Norris presides at activities that will include both MacMurray College for Women and MacMurray College for Men. The intervening years have been eventful, as the college and the town have grown together.

Founders' Day at MacMurray is different from the custom of many schools, when an individual — either a president or a large benefactor—is honored. The big Friday at MacMurray commemorates the first meeting of the Board of Trustees, Oct. 10, 1846, in Jacksonville. Members of that Board are recognized as founders.

Foremost were Methodist ministers Peter Cartwright and Peter Akers, after whom MacMurray's first-line scholarships were named. Both Akers and Cartwright scholars, along with National Methodist scholars, will be honored as part of Friday's activities.

College President To Speak

Dr. L. D. Davidson, President of Westminster College, Fulton, Mo., will key daytime activities Friday with an address at 11 a.m., in Annie Merner Chapel. He will speak to alumnae, students, parents, faculty, and friends of the college who will gather for the day's activities.

After a band concert at 4:30 on the chapel lawn, simultaneous dinners will be held in McClelland dining hall (for women) and in Norris House (for men.)

It will be the first annual Founder's Day dinner for men, whose college began in September, 1957, and was dedicated about a month later, Oct. 25.

Trustees To Meet Oct. 17

The annual meeting of the Board of Trustees will be held the following day, Saturday, Oct. 17.

It will be somewhat different than the first meetings of the board in 1846, when eight of nine members were from Jacksonville. Minutes of their meeting for the first 12 years are recorded and preserved in the college archives as a valued historical record. Recorded by William Brown and John Mathers, its secretaries, they reveal the careful attention given to the selection of principals and teachers, to the planning and erection of the first building and all the out-houses, to efforts to raise funds and establish an endowment.

Also, the minutes record the minute attention given to innumerable matters of detail: the Board "resolved that Brother Gass see to putting up a lightning-rod;" "that Rev. J. F. Jaquess procure a geological table;" and "that Brothers Newman and Jaquess see Mrs. Blodget and ascertain what a pair of terrestrial and celestial globes can be obtained for."

Meeting places for these first meetings were—the basement of Centenary church, the office of Brown and Yates or that of William Thomas, and the home of Nicholas Milburn. In October, 1854, a resolution was adopted "that hereafter the Board of Trustees shall meet at the college building on the first Monday of every month at early candlelighting."

Shooters are invited to participate regardless of whether they have dogs. Good dogs will be available for all shooters.

There is no limit on shooters, but both men and women participants should be on the area early to sign up. They will be taken in order of their arrival.

The City of the Year 2000 pictured below is no mere science-fiction. New discoveries in science and technology make most of its features possible today—and the demands of an ever-expanding population will make such cities inevitable and necessary within the 40 years remaining in the 20th century. This possible version of the City of Tomorrow was envisioned by This Earth, official publication of Permanente Cement Co.

Its mass of glass, concrete and metal is beautifully functional and is designed around expected advances in construction, transportation, communication and, above all, man's growing awareness of the people around him. In this latter sense, the City of Tomorrow is being built today by us all.

Space Age Began Two Years Ago Oct. 4 When Russia Sent Sputnik I Into Orbit

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

Year III of the spectacular space age now begins.

The Soviets ushered in the space age on Oct. 4, 1957 when they sent Sputnik I into orbit.

In just two years, 12 U.S. and three Soviet satellites have orbited the earth. Two others are in orbits around the sun, and another has hit the moon — a total of 18 successful launches.

One Soviet and eight U.S. satellites still circle the earth. This doesn't include the two artificial sun planets.

If force of impact did not cause vaporization, hunks of earthly metal, the wreckage of a Soviet rocket, lie on the moon.

And now U.S. scientists hope to hang a 375-pound satellite in orbit around the moon, and perhaps catch the first fuzzy glimpses of the moon's other side.

Within a year or so, a Soviet or American astronaut probably will orbit the earth, and come home to spin a wondrous tale of man's first eyewitness look at earth and universe from a perch in space.

Later will come human landings on the moon, and journeys to Mars or Venus. Long before that, scientists will be using satellites to watch over and forecast the world's weather, to speed telephone and cable messages from point to point on earth far more cheaply and reliably, and for instantaneous world-wide TV shows.

They also plan telescopes mounted on space platforms to explore the birth and death of stars and seek more clues to the origin and fate of the universe.

Space ventures so far have cost American and Soviet taxpayers hundreds of millions of dollars. Billions will be spent in the future.

Is it really worth the candle? What has been learned?

Satellites have not proven scientists wrong in their earlier general guesses about space. But they have brought some surprise findings.

The main one is discovery of two vast belts or halos of radiation girdling the earth, the so-called Van Allen radiation.

This might be a hazard to space travelers. The belts also supply valuable clues about behavior of the sun, and the cause of northern lights or aurora. Presumably, the northern lights are caused as trapped particles in the higher V Allen belt come racing down to earth over the poles.

The dog Laika rode up in Sputnike II, demonstrating at least that animals can survive the strain of rocket take-off and weightlessness in space.

Tiny Vanguard I, only the size of a grapefruit proved to be one of the best space tattle-tales, because of its stable, far-flung orbit.

For one thing, it shows the earth to be shaped a bit like a pear, with the stem at the north. This was learned from slight differences in the way in which the earth's gravity pulled at Vanguard I's orbit.

Satellites indicate the earth's thin blanket of air extends farther out than supposed. Particularly they indicate the atmosphere is about five times denser at 150 miles up than was thought.

Curiously, the hottest air is found over the poles rather than the equator. At 50-mile height, the temperature seems to be hundreds or thousands of degrees hotter than high over the equator.

This high polar heating could be caused by Van Allen particles streaming to earth near the poles.

Satellite experiences added to evidence that the sun's outer, tenuous atmosphere actually engulfs the earth, perhaps profoundly affecting weather or other events on earth.

Such effects from the sun might well be the trigger for high altitude reactions which in turn trigger great weather changes down on earth, including droughts or rainy seasons.

Satellites also boldly bumped into and counted the pelting rain of cosmic dust—the meteorites and micrometeorites, some of which are seen as visible shooting stars.

Latest measurements indicate 3,000 to perhaps 10,000 tons of cosmic dust falls upon the earth every single day. Such weight adds only imperceptibly to fattening the earth's already-massive bulk. But some scientists wonder whether the dust-rain provides seeds or nuclei for condensation and fall of raindrops.

So far, the meteorite rain does not appear to be an insurmountable problem for man's future voyage in space. He could be protected against this stinging bombardment.

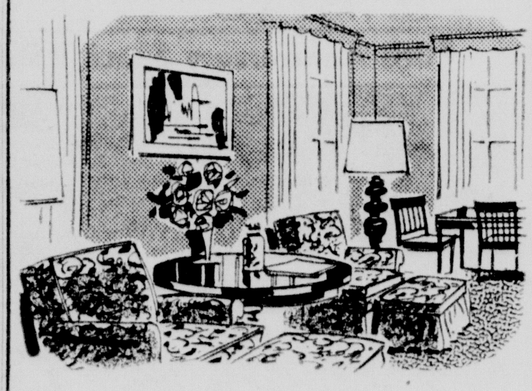

The Soviets smacked a rocket into the moon. From its instrument readings, Soviet scientists report the moon apparently has no magnetic field.

This could mean the moon has no molten core, as the earth does, and that therefore perhaps the moon and earth were formed separately, rather than the earth being the ancient mother of a moon glob torn from the earth's beginnings.

Satellites provided eyes and ears to look at the sun's radiation and actions, and to help tell whether cosmic rays stream only from the sun or from far distant points in the universe.

They provided the probers to explore the electric umbrella—the ionesphere — which girdles the earth and which reflects radio signals from point to point on earth.

Starts were made toward satellites which can be hung in space to watch clouds and weather fronts and storms forming over the earth, or to provide sure, cheap communications, or to sense whether the earth is absorbing or surrendering more heat and radiation than it receives from the sun.

Adding CHARM to YOUR Home
by Edna L. Gustine

MAKE AGE AN ASSET
If you are planning on buying one of the large old homes, or are now living in one, don't be discouraged about its decorative possibilities. Combine yesterday's space with today's furniture and equipment for easier and better living. The result will be a home in which your family can stretch out comfortably and relax. Just because a house is old is no excuse for it being humdrum and outdated. A cheerful color scheme, up-to-date and appropriate window treatment, and imaginative furniture arrangement can produce an effect of ageless charm.
The high ceiling in the large older-type living room in the above sketch has been painted the same muted rose as the walls to make it appear lower. Window valance boxes match the walls and ceiling. Light, filtering through the nylon panels that are the same shade as the walls gives the effect of strained sunlight.
Note that the furniture is in scale with size of the room.
A generous-sized circular table flanked by two roomy lounge chairs occupies a large portion of the long wall. Sofa on wall opposite (not shown) grouped with lamps and tables balances this group. One end of the room has been converted into a dining area.
Quality, like virtue, is its own reward. We're sticklers for quality because we know that when you purchase a quality item from us you will be satisfied, and satisfied customers are our most treasured business asset. You are assured of getting quality here, so make us your home store . . . always.

OFFICIALS AT CONFERENCE

With the 15th annual meeting of the Illinois Guidance Personnel Association at MacMurray College Friday and Saturday came 500 delegates and several prominent officials, including George T. Wilkins, (left), State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and C. A. Michalman, Chief, Occupational Information and Guidance Services, State Board of Vocational Education, Springfield.

Wilkins keynoted the opening session of the guidance conference, begun at MacMurray in 1944, by discussing the future of guidance in Illinois at an afternoon meeting in Annie Merner Chapel. Lucile Goodrich, County Superintendent of Livingston County, Pontiac, presided at the session.

President Louis W. Norris of MacMurray brought a warm welcome to counselors immediately preceding Wilkins' address.

The conference, including Illinois teachers, counselors, and administrators, reached its high point Saturday when Dugald Arbuckle, President of the American Personnel and Guidance Association, spoke Saturday at an afternoon session in Annie Merner Chapel. Sessions were held in both the chapel and science hall. Presiding at the session was Dean Wendell S. Dysinger of MacMurray, who was active in founding the IGPA in 1944.

Making local arrangements for the meet was Phoebe Wilkins, Personnel Counselor at MacMurray and Robert Blazier, Assistant Principal, Jonathan Turner Junior High and himself a MacMurray graduate.

Among subjects discussed were programs for the gifted student; programs with parents; college counseling; helping students to establish goals which will lead to achievement; use of community resources in the guidance program; problems of college orientation arising out of the rapidly increasing enrollments, and influence of family background factors on vocational choice, achievement and personal adjustment.

State Supt. Wilkins Speaks At Guidance, Counseling Session

Guidance and counseling of pupils in Illinois public schools and junior colleges should be expanded to provide the most effective use of human resources in modern society.

George T. Wilkins, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, sounded this keynote in an address delivered before the State conference of the Illinois Guidance and Personnel Association at MacMurray College.

The state schools chief said "the challenge of the atomic age can be met if guidance of our young people goes beyond the mere choice of a vocation and takes into account all abilities of the individual plus resources of the school and the community.

"The contributions which can be made by guidance at this time," he declared, "are of particular importance to the individual because of social and economic upheavals, and national and world turmoil.

"They are important to the nation because on the most effective utilization of our human resources may depend our very survival."

Wilkins said guidance in America is not "regimentation." He explained:

"System Of Free Choices"

"It is a system of free choices intelligently made. On this principle it makes its constructive contribution to individual welfare, social responsibility, and to the American way of life."

He said "Illinois is out front in the list of states providing guidance services in our public schools."

He reported the number of counselors has almost doubled in the last ten years.

Out of a total of 690 recognized high schools in Illinois 395 have 1,375 persons specifically assigned to guidance duties.

"Although much needs yet to be done," he stated, "it is indeed an outstanding showing even though it has been to a great extent providing guidance services on a shoestring.

"It clearly indicates the possibilities and direction in which future developments should go."

Rev. Stanley Rapp opened the meeting with prayer. Then he read an interesting account of the history of Grace Chapel church which had been prepared by Mrs. Pearl Brockhouse with much help from Charles Ogle. Mimeographed copies of this report were given to each family present.

El Gallo's home was a bright two-story hacienda, lemon-yellow stucco garnished with a roof of red tile. It was a rambling building, set in the midst of several acres of greenery that sprouted rather surprisingly in this realm of drab sagebrush. Surrounding all was a high and thick hedge.

Ramon stopped the taxi beside the iron gate which bore a pretentious coat of arms. "Do you wish me to wait?"

"That won't be necessary," Mallory said. "We're staying here, remember?"

"Ah, that is so," Ramon admitted. "I'm afraid I have a very bad memory. You are Senor Estudillo's friend."

As they reached the broad porch, Clovis seized Mallory's arm. "I can't do it, Ross, please." Mallory said quietly. Cloris blinked, startled. "Smile, in case they're watching us. And listen. It's too late to back out without spoiling the show. You've been bellyaching about wanting to be treated like a man so don't fall back now on being a woman. Keep smiling, darling. Because if you blow the bit, I promise you I'll break that pretty little neck of yours."

Through her set smile, Cloris snapped, "Just try it, Tarzan." But the anger was good for her, since it washed away the incipient panic.

His suspicion that their approach had been observed was borne out by the speed with which the door swung open. However, they were not greeted by an armed guard, as Cloris had expected, nor by a servant, which would have been more likely. Instead, the doorkeeper was a woman, a swart and stocky matriarch dressed in severe black. She eyed the visitors distrustfully as Mallory introduced himself. "What do you want here? I don't know, Senor Sutton."

"We have some business with El Gallo."

"My son is retire." The woman moved as if to shut the door.

Mallory leaned casually against it. "I don't blame you for being cautious, Senora Estudillo. It's true that you don't know us and neither does your son. But we do have some mutual friends. Also a mutual regard for a good profit." As he talked, he pulled out a forged copy of the coded cablegram that Datus Sutton had received from the Kaisar-i-Rum. He didn't offer it to the woman but held it negligently where she could see it.

Senora Estudillo read the cablegram. From her complete lack of expression, it was impossible to tell whether it had any significance for her. She grunted. "Well, we'll see. Wait here." Mallory allowed her to close the door, leaving them alone on the porch with their luggage.

When the door was reopened, El Gallo's mother was accompanied by a man. He was a slender but well-muscled youngster, with sleepy eyes and black hair brushed straight back. Despite the warmth of the day and the custom of the country, he wore a sport jacket over his polo shirt, which Cloris guessed meant that he was carrying a gun.

The young man held the cablegram, between thumb and forefinger. He said, "Where did you get this?"

"The usual way. It was sent to me by Steve. You remember Steve, don't you?"

"I'm very bad on names. You say yours is . . ."

"Sutton. This is my wife."

"Of course." The young man held the door open for them to enter. "We don't mean to be impolite. It's just that we get so few visitors, we don't know how to act. My name, by the way, is Cagigas."

To ease the tension she glanced around the large entry hall and commented brightly. "What a lovely home you have, Senora Estudillo—so cool and restful."

"Thank you," the old woman said without cordiality.

Cagigas' attention had been entirely for the man but now he shifted his gaze to Cloris for a brief but unhurried inspection. "Your first trip to La Paz, Mrs. Sutton?"

"Why, yes. When Datus decided to come down here on business, I insisted that he bring me along, as a sort of vacation, you know. We haven't had a real vacation in years."

"You speak Spanish very well," Cagigas said thoughtfully. "You plan an extended stay, then?"

"That depends on El Gallo," Mallory said. "When do we see him?"

"Immediately. He's waiting for you on the terrace. If you will kindly follow Senora Estudillo . . ."

• • •

But the man who waited for them was neither indolent nor contemplative. He rose quickly at their approach, a genial smile on his thick lips. He was short and fat, like his mother, but his hair was red, flaming in the sunlight like a coxcomb, which explained his nickname, The Rooster. El Gallo looked, as Mallory had termed him, a successful businessman.

He anounced, "I am Estudillo, El Gallo. And you, I presume, are Mr. and Mrs. Datus Sutton."

Before either Mallory or Cloris could confirm this, Cagigas spoke casually from his watchdog position behind them. "No, Jose—they're lying. The girl is named Howard and works for the American border authorities. I suppose the man does, too."

In the moment of silence that followed, Cloris looked around and saw that she had been right. Cagigas did have a pistol under his coat. But now he was holding it in his hand.

Macmillan Or Gaitskell—Britain Is Sure Prime Minister Is Man Of Steady Nerves

LONDON (AP)—Great Britain's prime minister after the general election of Oct. 8 is sure to be a man of steady nerves, calm in crisis.

Hugh Gaitskell, who will assume governmental leadership of the nation if it's a Labor party victory, has been called a "desiccated adding machine."

When London busmen went on strike for seven weeks, tying the great city into agonizing traffic knots, Macmillan serenely took his long weekends in the country, confident that the governmental apparatus he had set up would overcome the difficulty.

When Gaitskell meets an unusually difficult problem he frequently does his thinking in the garden, solving the matter while minding the rhododendrons.

Macmillan, 65, is a Tory, but a person deeply concerned with the welfare of the common man.

Gaitskell, 53, is a Socialist, but he is no violent exploiter of the class struggle. He thinks capitalism can be managed.

The "desiccated adding machine" tag was pinned on Gaitskell by a volatile political ally in the Labor party, Aneurin Bevan. Gaitskell has the mind of a keen economist who reduces problems to figures and statistics.

Gaitskell belongs to the newer type of British labor leader. He didn't come up the violent way, from street corner meetings and protest marches. He believes socialism must be practical to be successful.

Son of a man who was a senior civil servant in India, Gaitskell isn't rich but, also, certainly not poor. He never felt the economic pinch that makes political radicals.

He has the genteel polish of the pro[illegible] middle classes. [illegible] College, Oxford University, he distinguished himself in studies of philosophy, economics and politics.

World War II threw him into jobs suiting his talents, administrative work in the ministries of Economic Warfare and Economic Affairs and the Board of Trade. At a time of economic crisis he became minister of fuel and power and finally, his highest office to date, chancellor of the exchequer.

He developed a flair for political maneuver at a time when labor party veterans Lord Attlee and Herbert Morrison were getting tired. Leadership became a contest between Gaitskell and Bevan. The economist triumphed over the erstwhile coal miner.

The alternative to Gaitskell, polished Socialist, is, of course, Harold Macmillan, polished aristocrat.

The stature of this Tory veteran has increased greatly in two and a half swift years. Tory giants who had dominated affairs, Sir Winston Churchill and Sir Anthony Eden, retired from the scene, and Macmillan took hold.

Under his leadership Britain prospered, Anglo-American relations have been kept on the rails and British opinions in international affairs are listened to with attention. If there is to be a summit meeting, Macmillan will have the satisfaction of knowing that he urged it and took the initiative to bring it about through his visit to Moscow with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

A Tory party which was shaken by the Suez affair has been rehabilitated by this completely relaxed statesman with a first class mind. He is a sensitive scholar — read Aeschylus while lying wounded in a shell hole in World War I — but is tough and afraid of nothing.

In active politics since 1924, Macmillan developed slowly under the giants up in front. When he took over the premiership in January 1957, many Tory leaders regarded him an emergency pilot, probably tobe replaced shortly. But Macmillan, completely self confident, did not propose to be a stopgap.

Macmillan's personal appearance, Edwardian clothes and all, probably accounted i part for the suspicion that he might be ineffective. He doesn't look like a man of explosive action. The hooded eyes, the drooping moustache — both good cartoonists' features — and the deliberate speech suggest the thoughtful elder statesman.

But Tories who doubted his qualifications for ' premiership might well have studied his political record and his background as a wealthy and successful publisher.

First he was a Tory rebel. After World War I he was appalled by the poverty of the first district he represented in Parliament, Stockton on Tees.

He campaigned like a rabid reformer for social improvement. As World War II approached he denounced appeasement of Hitler and Mussolini. Named by Churchill to serve as British minister-resident in Northwest Africa, he met Gen. Eisenhower and formed a vital friendship which is solid today.

As I See It

by E. W. BROWN

You may have seen a future President of the U. S. today . . . or a famous actor, writer, space man or scientist. They're all busy learning what they're going to be. And with tomorrow's leaders heading for school today we all have to be more careful in our driving. Many children are going to the Three "R" factory for the first time . . . and others may have forgotten some of the safety rules they learned last semester. They're apt to be a little careless crossing intersections and observing traffic signals. Let's not take chances . . . when a little extra caution can mean so much. Especially in passing schools . . . let's be as alert as a two-headed hawk and as cautious as a banker's opinions. Keep an eye on the kids!

A Pennsylvania man dislocated his shoulder when he spanked his 9-year-old son. Probably just as he was saying, "This hurts me worse than it does you".

Now, it's time for the commercial — a short one, honestly. E. W. Brown's is the place to go for the best used car values. You get a guarantee from us that really means something. This type of guarantee is possible because our used cars are put in top mechanical condition by the expert mechanics in our own service department. GATHERING THE SHEAVES of rice is a harvest-time occupation of the entire family. Girls wear pull-on sleeves to protect arms from stalks.

LUNCH TIME AT HARVEST TIME finds the farmhands enjoying their noon bowl of rice in the field. Neighbors always help one another gather the crop.

RICE THAT HAS BEEN REMOVED from threshing bins in the field is carried to the farmyards for drying and storing. The larger farm co-operatives have mechanical driers to process the rice. Ponlai (Angel's Island) rice, the world's finest, is grown on Taiwan (Formosa).

FOOD FOR FREE CHINA

U. S. Rice Production Methods Give Formosa A Record Harvest

UTILIZING new farm methods developed in the United States, Formosan (Taiwan) farmers are increasing their rice yield at a rate of 9 per cent annually despite the island's rapidly expanding population and outlays for national defense.

The island, named Formosa by the Spanish because of its scenic beauty, lies less than 100 miles from the Chinese mainland. The periodic famines that strike the Communist-held mainland are unknown on Formosa, which is more than 25 per cent under cultivation. Two rice crops a year are raised, with sweet potatoes, tobacco, wheat and corn often being grown between the rice harvests.

American engineers have developed rice driers that speed up the production, normally hampered by the heavy rains that hinder the ancient drying methods. Formosan soil is one of the poorest in the world, but American methods of fertilization have revitalized the land. For the Chinese farmer the year is one of continuous vigil. Water levels must be maintained in the paddies; fungus and insect pests must be constantly checked. Despite all this, the year 1957 produced a total rice crop from the two harves's of 1,832,700 tons. Free China's four-year plan is paying dividends.

YOKOHAMA-BOUND. Large bags of rice are loaded aboard ship at Keelung, Taiwan, for shipment to Japan. Rice is also exported to Pakistan.

A FARMER BEATS rice stalks on board in threshing tubs spaced for convenience of all in the field. Grain soon fills tubs.

MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN work side by side in the fields at harvest time. Here, they are gathering stalks, inedible to humans, that provide excellent fodder for the hard-working water buffalo that pull the plows. Rice feeds many millions of persons daily in the Orient.

Chicago Livestock Market Report

CHICAGO (AP) — Prices for butcher hogs declined sharply this week, dipping to a new three-year-low on Wednesday, but later recovered part of the decline on curtailed receipts.

At the end of the week barrows and gilts were down 50 to 65 cents and sows finished 25 cents down from a week ago.

Increased receipts and a substantial downturn in several wholesale pork cuts accounted for the decline in live hogs prices at midweek. Receipts at Chicago were the largest for any week since June and the salable supply at 12 markets across the country was the largest since April, except for the week ended Sept. 18.

Prices of pork loins declined $3 to $4.50 for the week, after recovering slightly at the end of the week. Several other cuts dipped $2 to $3.

The average cost of all barrows and gilts this week was $13.18, lowest since March 16, 1956.

In the cattle market prices for slaughter steers finished steady to around 50 cents lower. Heifers closed steady to 25 cents down and cows were weak to 75 cents off from a week ago.

Marketings of cattle after Monday were sharply curtailed. Receipts from Tuesday through Friday were 20 per cent smaller than last week when supplies were the largest of the year to date.

About 70 to 75 per cent of the receipts were slaughter steers and 15 to 20 per cent heifers. Clearance this week was good compared to a week ago when 2,500 head remained unsold and were carried over to Monday's market.

Spring slaughter lambs averaging good and better ended steady to weak and lower grades $1 to $1.50 lower, with some late sales on cull and utility types down $2. Slaughter ewes finished steady.

CHICAGO (AP)—(USDA)— Here is a summary of the hog, cattle and sheep markets for the week with estimated receipts for Saturday:

Hogs 100; at the close several lots sorted No 1 and mixed No 1 and 2 200-230 lb butchers brought 13.60 while mixed No 2 and 3 and No 1, 2 and 3 190-280 lb weights bulked in a narrow price range of 13.15-13.35. ## New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—Buoyed by hopes of a steel strike settlement, the stock market continued to rally this week.

President Eisenhower's personal intervention in the strike situation gave Wall Street a lift from the start. The President's implied deadline of Oct. 8 gave the impression that, even if the Taft-Hartley Law has to be invoked, the mills would soon be open again.

At the same time, one gnawing uncertainty was lifted when Soviet Premier Khrushchev departed from the United States without creating any drastic change in the status quo.

Tight money and high interest rates remained the market's chief fundamental concern. This was underlined by the new U.S. Treasury note issue at 5 per cent, the highest rate for such an issue since the early 1920's.

The money bugaboo was overshadowed, however, by soaring hopes that the prompt renewal of steel pourings and consequent resumption of highly profitable rail carloadings would cure some of the cramps the economy is suffering.

Rail stocks responded bullishly to this while steels remained ragged. New York Central's gain of 3¾ was a sensation among the battered carriers. Baltimore & Ohio rose 2⅜.

The launching of promotional campaigns for the 1960 auto models was accompanied by sharp interest in the motor shares.

The Dow Jones industrial average gained 3.98 to 636.57.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose $2.80 to $222.80 for its second straight weekly advance.

Volume slipped to 13,638,990 shares from 16,011,460 the week before. Of 1,407 issues traded, 766 rose and 523 fell, so the advance was by no means unanimous.

Bond trading declined to $31,419,000 par value from $44,631,000 a week ago. A year ago the total was $29,839,000.

GRAIN FUTURES REGISTER GAINS

CHICAGO (AP)—The grain futures market ground out gains this week despite the absence of any real bullish influences.

The surprise strike of dock workers on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts caught the trade off guard Thursday and prices for wheat and soybeans sagged on the theory that export demand would suffer unless the walkout ended quickly.

But despite the waterfront work stoppage soybeans and the bread grains rebounded to end the week higher along with rye, corn and most oats deliveries.

At the close Friday, wheat was ⅝ to 2 cents a bushel higher than a week ago, corn was up ⅛ to ⅜, oats finished ⅞ higher to ⅛ lower, rye advanced 1¾ to 2½, and soybeans were up 4¼ to 4⅝.

Friday, second day of the dock strike, exporters were offering grains to foreign buyers with the understanding that shipment might not be possible until November.

Heavy rains and windstorms helped corn and soybeans advance early in the week and potential foreign demand—most of which failed to materialize up to the close Friday—brought support to wheat.

The rains over the Midwest corn and soybean areas stalled curing and harvesting of these crops.

A private survey by the Quaker Oats Co. showed at least 50 per cent of the soybeans have been harvested in Illinois, Indiana and Minnesota, which is ahead of last year. Progress was reported very slow in Iowa and Missouri, particularly in Iowa, where the survey showed no more than 10 per cent of the crop has been combined.

JERSEYVILLE — The Grand Jury of the Circuit Court of Jersey County concluded its work to date for the regular September term of the court Monday evening and returned a total of seven indictments. One of the indictments was a joint one against two defendants.

The list of indictments as filed in the office of Circuit Clerk Paul Kadell is as follows: Carrell D. Camerer, Reckless Homicide; Charles Herbert Dunse, two indictments charging Burglary and Larceny at the Munsterman Service Station in this city the night of April 4th and 14th.

Edwin Eugene Waters, Burglary and Larceny; Roy and Jerry Martindale, Larceny, two counts; and Truman Groppel, Assault With Intent to Kill and Assault With A Deadly Weapon upon the person of Charles Noble Smith and Assault With Intent to Kill and Assault With A Deadly Weapon upon the person of James Ray Cole, March 22nd, 1959.

Reckless Homicide

The Reckless Homicide indictment against Camerer arises out of a collision between his car the night of May 9th with a pickup truck driven by Clarence Haun of Fieldon, on Route Number 16, one mile west of Jerseyville. As a result of the collision, James Edward Haun, ten-year-old son of Clarence Haun died several hours later in the Jersey Community Hospital.

The indictment also contains a count charging Camerer with operating his car while under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

The indictments against Charles Herbert Dunse arise out of two burglaries he is charged with committing at the Munsterman Service Station. The one of April 4th charges the stealing of a sum of money following the break in and the one of April 18th charges theft of two whitewall tires and seven cartons of cigarettes.

Larceny

The Larceny indictment against Roy and Jerry Martindale charges them with the theft of an 18 horsepower Evinrude motor of the value of $250 and a 15 horsepower Evinrude motor of the value of $160 from Lawrence J. Ontis of the western Jersey county river locality.

The indictments against Truman Groppel of Rosedale Township, Jersey county farmer, arise out of the shooting of Charles Noble Smith and James Ray Cole of the Alton area the evening of March 22nd at the Groppel farm in western Jersey county. Groppel is charged in one count of each indictment with assault with intent to kill and in a second count with assault with a deadly weapon. Groppel is charged with using a 12 gauge shotgun during the incident.

Burglary

The indictment against Edwin Waters arises out of a burglary at the Seagon Grocery Store on West Carpenter Street the night of September 7th. Waters is charged with stealing three cartons of cigarettes, two boxes of cigars and 40 pennies following the breakin.

Three other youths were arrested also in conjunction with the Seagon Grocery breakin. Their cases because of their youth are pending in the county court, the local juvenile court of the county.

GOP To Make Issue Of Budget In Next Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republicans picked budget balancing Saturday as the big issue for the next session of Congress in anticipation of making it one of their chief 1960 campaign appeals.

In a memorandum to all GOP members, the Senate Republican Policy Committee staff cited seven Democratic-sponsored proposals it said would mean these will figure prominently in a new battle of the budget beginning in January.

Calling budget balancing a vitally necessary achievement, the committee said the public mood demonstrates "that the people of this country recognize the importance of fiscal responsibility."

"Every housewife knows what higher price tags in supermarkets and department stores mean," the committee memo said. "Every working man knows what inflation does to the worth of his pay check. Every farmer knows what ever-mounting costs do to his income."

The Policy Committee said that in the 1959 session the Republicans proved themselves to be the savers and the Democrats the spenders. Democrats have disputed that.

Will Investigate Propriety Of Suit Filed By Leopold

CHICAGO (AP)—The new chairman of the Illinois Parole Board said Saturday he will investigate the propriety of a $1,405,000 damage suit filed by Nathan Leopold, on parole for his part in the 1924 thrill killing of Bobby Franks.

Charles Kinney, a Mount Carroll lawyer, said he will attempt to determine whether the suit violates the terms of Leopold's parole.

When the board paroled Leopold last year, it admonished him to stay out of the limelight and refrain from seeking publicity.

Leopold charged in a suit filed Friday that the book and movie "Compulsion" invaded his privacy. He named 57 defendants including the book's author, Meyer Levin.

Paroled after nearly 35 years in prison, Leopold went to Puerto Rico to live.

Kinney told a newsman Saturday:

"I'm not prepared to say at this time whether the suit violates the terms of the parole because I've only been on the board a month. But I certainly plan to look into it."

Elmer Gertz, lawyer who fought successfully for Leopold's parole said the suit definitely does not violate provisions of the parole.

Harry Grayson's SCOREBOARD

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—If you are ancient enough to have ever watched hoss traders trying to outsmart each other by deprecating each others' hides, or . . .

If you've ever listened to shrewd New England swappers negotiating a deal, or . . .

If you've ever been taken in by a slick used-car dealer, then . . .

You may have a slight idea of what it's like to be in the middle of a group of big league gumshoes scouting the other circuit preparatory to the first inter-league trading period in history, or in the 59 years which the American League has been in existence. For a stretch of 25 days, starting Nov. 21 and ending Dec. 15, you see, players may be switched from one major league to the other without waivers.

This is certain to create much more baseball news than usual during the off-season. In this situation, a front office will be able to obtain someone it needs for a player who otherwise might come back to haunt the club he left.

Big names are sure to be involved. Already you hear that Gil McDougald of the Yankees may be headed for the Braves in exchange for Lew Burdette, for example.

"How," asked a foxy forager, "would Bob Cerv look with his broad back planted against that short left field wall in the Los Angeles Coliseum? Bob wouldn't have to throw far and he wouldn't have to get a good piece of the ball to clear that yawning left field screen. On top of that, the Dodgers have players Kansas City could use and wouldn't object to absorbing Cerv's $38,000 contract."

Older players will be up for grabs—Hank Bauer and Bobby Shantz of the Yankees, the Dodgers' Duke Snider and Carl Furillo, to name four coming to mind offhand. The Red Sox might even decide to get something for Ted Williams and rid of his fat contract in one swipe. Disappointing players are likely to ride the shuttle—pitchers like Herb Score of the Indians and the Yankees' Don Larsen and the lame duck champions' first baseman, Marv Throneberry.

Grandstand seats behind the plate at big league parks fairly crawl with sleuths representing outfits in the other league. One sweep of the eyes at Yankee Stadium revealed Gabe Paul and Paul Florence of the Reds, the Braves' Ted McGrew, the Dodgers' Al Campanis, the Giants' Tom Sheehan and the Cardinals' Eddie Stanky. When they are looking for ballplayers, none of these guys would give you the right time if they had a dozen watches.

Six National League clubs are known to be interested in McDougald, but this is what a scout representing one of them said: "He'd be all right if he had a new pair of legs. He's old and has lost speed and range. Besides, he's seriously thinking of quitting baseball after this year to devote full time to a building maintenance business."

The versatile McDougald, 31, sorely retarded by a virus condition the greater part of this season, has no intention of leaving baseball. He intends to be around another three or four years, at least. Playing shortstop or second base, not a few competent baseball men say he would help three National League clubs to pennants.

But you won't hear anything like that from scouts and clubs seeking to deal for Gil McDougald.

Gophers Rear Up And Stop Indiana, 24-14

By JIM KLOBUCHAR

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota's Gophers, prostrated by 14 defeats in 16 games, rose and smashed Indiana, 24-14, Saturday with a wide open attack.

With its hefty, aggressive line holding Indiana to two first downs through the first three quarters, the Gophers turned loose their splashiest offensive show in years to win their Big Ten opener.

Not until the Gophers rolled up a 24-0 lead did Indiana offer anything approaching the class it displayed in whipping Illinois by three touchdowns a week ago.

Indiana got both of its touchdowns in the final period when all the suspense was gone.

Minnesota sent Sandy Stephens over from the three after recovering a fumble on the opening kickoff. The Hoosiers nearly handed Minnesota another touchdown by fumbling the next kickoff, too, but a wildly thrown lateral broke up a Gopher drive.

A safety late in the first period and Tom King's touchdown smash from the 2 mounted the lead to 14-0 at the half.

Another Indiana fumble started Minnesota on a 44-yard third period drive, topped by Bill Kauth's touchdown lunge from the 2. Later in the period, sophomore Judge Dickson booted a 20 - yard field goal.

Indiana came alive in the fourth period to score on Don Cromer's one-yard burst and a 64-yard pass from John Henry Jackson to Ron McCauley.

Henry Aaron And Kuenn Capture Batting Crowns

Kuenn won by a comfortable margin over teammate Al Kaline. Kuenn's average was .353 and Kaline's .327. Tito Francona of Cleveland finished with a .363 mark, but he had 399 official times at bat and only 443 total appearances. To be eligible for the title a player must have a minimum of 477 total appearances including bases on balls, sacrifices and hit by pitches.

Ed Mathews of Milwaukee won the National League home run crown by hitting his 46th in the second playoff game against the Dodgers. He ended the regular season last Sunday in a tie with Ernie Banks of the Chicago Cubs. Banks, however, finished on top in runs batted in with 143.

Harmon Killebrew of Washington and Rocky Colavito of Cleveland wound up their season-long duel for the American League home run championship in a deadlock. Both had 42. Jackie Jensen of Boston drove in the most runs, 112.

Alston Won't Admit Advantage Of Home Park

By CHARLES MAHER
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Los Angeles Dodgers, outscored better than 3-1 so far in the World Series but still in a flat-footed tie, return Sunday to their home park—baseball's most celebrated diamond-in-the-rough.

And what advantage, if any, do they acquire by this switch from Chicago's Comiskey Park, a field plainly geometrical, to Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum, a field insanely unsymetrical?

"Not a helluva lot," is the way Walter Alston puts it.

Walter, the manager of the Dodgers, probably wouldn't admit an advantage if the other team had to bat with warm licorice sticks. But he may have a point when he says the only possible advantage the Dodgers will have at home is their familiarity with "that thing"—the left-field screen.

And, in his defense, it should be recorded that the Dodgers have knocked fewer balls over the screen in each of the past two seasons than their opponents.

Alston admits, however, that there is some slight advantage in knowing how to play balls that bounce off the screen. But that's as far as he'll go.

"They can knock balls into it as well as we can," he says.

Perhaps of greater importance than the screen itself are the pitchers who will attempt to keep it from being bent up too badly. And, in this connection, Alston may have some thinking to do.

Sunday his choice is easy enough. It will be Don Drysdale, the long, lean righthander with the sidearm delivery.

But then there is Monday. Will he start Roger Craig, the fellow who was summarily put to flight in the series opener at Chicago? Or will it be Sandy Koufax, whose formidable fast ball frequently runs wild?

And, after Craig or Koufax, then what?

After the Dodgers evened the series by defeating the White Sox 4-3 Friday, the Los Angeles dressing room was rich with confidence.

Louisiana State Blanks Baylor, 22-0

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) —With halfback Bill Cannon flashing his All - America form, Louisiana State's national champions routed Baylor 22-0 before 30,000 fans.

The 205-pound Cannon galloped 50 yards with an intercepted pass for his touchdown and set up another LSU tally with a 35-yard sprint in the first quarter.

The victory was the third of the season for the undefeated Tigers, ranked number one in this week's Associated Press poll.

LSU played most of the last half with Cannon and his first string teammates sitting on the bench. The LSU defensive units repeatedly smothered any Baylor threat and the Texans' deepest penetration was to the LSU in the third quarter.

LSU needed less than five minutes to get into the scoring column. Cannon's 35-yard jaunt took the ball to the Baylor 25 and two plays later quarterback Warren Rabb passed eight yards to fullback Donnie Daye for the touchdown.

With 11 minutes remaining in the first half, Cannon picked off a wayward Baylor pass and sprinted 50 yards for the score.

Sophomore halfback Wendell Harris booted a 26-yard field goal, and LSU's final tally came late in the second period on a five-yard pass from sub quarterback Durel Matherne to end Don Norwood.

Michigan State Rocks Michigan In 34-8 Rout

By DAVE DILES
Associated Press Sports Writer

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State's rock em-sock em defense snuffed out Michigan's early firepower and pulverized the Wolverines 34-8 Saturday before a record Michigan Stadium crowd of 103,234.

The Spartans turned this ancient backyard football feud into a rout by scoring touchdowns four of the first five times they had the ball.

Michigan State's big, agile linemen red-dogged Michigan's offense was rolling up a comfortable edge.

Michigan, which has beaten its bitterest rival only twice in the last decade, failed to pick up a first down until State had a 20-0 lead.

Halfback Herb Adderley wrecked Michigan almost single-handedly in the early going with 54 yards in 10 carries while No. 1 threat Blanche Martin was decoyed in State's new double-wing offense.

National Hockey League Opens 1959-60 Season

MONTREAL (AP)—The National Hockey League opens its 1959-60 season next week with a masked goalie, several key players on the sidelines with injuries and the Montreal Canadiens heavily favored to retain their championship.

The action gets under way Wednesday night in Chicago with the Black Hawks meeting the New York Rangers.

The Canadiens, Stanley Cup champions the past four years, open at home the following night against the Boston Bruins. Toronto and Boston play their first home games Saturday, Oct. 10. The Leafs against Chicago and Boston against New York. Detroit kicks off its home schedule Sunday, Oct. 11, meeting New York. The Rangers take the Madison Square Garden ice for the first time against Boston, Wednesday, Oct. 14.

The Canadiens have added two new faces. One is Billy Hicke, a flashy right winger who led the American League in total points last season. The second new face belongs to Jacques Plante, Montreal's inventive goalie. Plante designed a new form-fitting fibreglass face mask in the off-season and plans to wear it in the regular campaign. He will be the first goalie to do so.

Maurice (Rocket) Richard is returning for another season after suffering a fractured leg that kept him out for three months last year. The Canadiens' star has scored 606 goals.

The Rangers will open without Camille Henry, their crack left wingman, who sustained a leg injury in an exhibition game last week. Detroit will be without the services of Barry Cullen for five weeks and defenseman Pete Goegan for two weeks. Defenseman Jen Guy Talbot of Montreal also will be unable to suit up for the opener.

Augustana Wins From Central

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. (AP)—Augustana led all the way Saturday to defeat North Central 23-7 in a College Conference of Illinois football game.

Ken Colinson capped a 75-yard drive with a 5-yard scoring run; Jan Jamison drilled over from the 3 after a 72-yard march, and Colinson passed to Steve Perry for the third touchdown. Max Peterson booted three extra points.

Augie also scored a safety when North Central's John Turpin was tackled in the end zone while trying to punt.

North Central scored in the last 32 seconds of the game, Turpin going across from the 7 to end a 66-yard thrust.

Louisville Trims Bradley, 28-8

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)— With Dale Orem completing 13 of 23 pass attempts for 213 yards, Louisville's football team Saturday trimmed Bradley University, 28-8.

Louisville rallied behind Orem after trailing 8-7 at halftime. Ken Poroco's one-yard plunge capped a 54-yard thrust in the third period. Six minutes later Ron Petty blocked a Bradley punt, with Howard Turley recovering and dashing 12 yards to score.

In the fourth quarter, Louisville's Lee Calland went over from the 1 to end a 45 yard drive after Orem had stolen a pass. Orem's 18-yard aerial to Don Hockensmith made way for Calland's plunge.

Louisville's first touchdown in the opening quarter was scored by Porco on a 25-yard screen pass from Orem.

Bradley went ahead seconds before halftime on Ron Hermann's 9-yard toss to Phil Nolan. Hermann passed to Nolan for two extra points. Hermann, whose 8 completions netted 163 yards in the first half, was injured and sat out the entire second half.

Charleston Trips Knox College, 14-7

GALESBURG, Ill. (AP)—A fourth-quarter safety was the turning point Saturday as the Charleton Carls spoiled Knox's Dad's Day game with a 14-7 victory over the Siwashers in Midwest Conference play.

The Carls, from Northfield, Minn., are now 2-1 in league play, while the Siwashers are 1-2.

The key play came early in the fourth quarter when Knox, then leading 7-6, elected to punt from its own 2-yard line on the third down. Junior halfback Bill Boyd got off a good punt, but officials ruled he stepped out of the end zone before kicking.

This is Carleton in front by an 8-7 margin. Carleton widened the gap later in the period when John Lunsten passed to Rod Swartling for 13 yards and a TD.

Meyers, Counts, A Pair Of Sophomores, Pace Stunning 20-14 Win

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—Illinois came up with its own version of the lonely end formation made famous by Army to upset the fourth ranked Cadets, 20-14 Saturday before a thundering crowd of 64,891.

Quarterback Mel Meyers and halfback Johnny Counts, a pair of smooth-working sophomores, led fired up Illinois to its first triumph of the season.

Except for the passing of Joe Caldwell to end Don Usry, Army was no match for the Illini.

Illinois surprised Army with its new formation. The Illini would send a right end to the left side of the line, about 10-15 yards wide, thereby leaving the opposite tackle eligible. The lonely end would go deep while the halfback in motion would go about 10 yards past the line of scrimmage and grab the pass.

Meyers moved his team from the 26 to its first touchdown on the 41-yard pass to Counts. Counts took the ball on the 22 and then rushed past two would-be tacklers for the touchdown.

Illinois shocked the Cadets with another touchdown a few plays later. The Illini kicked off, but halfback Anderson fumbled on a jarring tackle by Bill Burrell and Doug Wallace recovered on the Cadet 16. Counts ripped 12 yards to the 4, Meyers went for 2 and Jim Brown banged into the end zone for the second touchdown.

In the second quarter, Caldwell began connecting with Usry and the Cadets moved from their own 25 to a touchdown with Jim Connors plunging into the end zone.

Illinois' Burrell recovered an Army fumble on the Cadet 45 and Meyers directed Illinois to the 25. Seven plays later Bill Brown went for the touchdown from the 1.

Army's final flurry came early in the fourth quarter and again it was the combination of Caldwell to Usry which clicked. The payoff pitch was a 21-yard pass to Usry, who was all alone in the end zone. The two Army stars connected on another pass for two more points after the touchdown.

Purdue Downs Irish Fourth Time In Six Years Behind Tiller

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Purdue's football team, always at its best against Notre Dame, hammered the Irish Saturday for the fourth time in six years, 28-7.

Bob Jarus, Purdue's bulldozer fullback, scored two of the touchdowns that gave the Boilermakers a 21-0 lead at the half.

On the fine passing and running of quarterback Don White, Notre Dame looked like it might come back in the second half—but Purdue's little Jim Tiller broke away on a 74-yard scoring run that broke the Irish back.

It was the first defeat for Notre Dame under new coach Joe Kuharich, whose sophomore-sprinkled squad beat North Carolina last week 28 - 8. Purdue simply had too many horses in its stable.

Quarterback Ross Fichtner's brilliant running on the option set up the first Purdue score. He suffered a severely bruised shoulder early in the third quarter, but Bernie Allen took over efficiently. Allen also kicked the four extra points.

Fichtner's runs of 25 and 16 yards set up a Jarus touchdown plunge from the 5, just 10 plays after Purdue took the opening kickoff. Purdue poured on two more touchdowns in the second quarter on Fichtner's 6-yard pass to end Dick Brooks and a short plunge by Jarus.

Notre Dame's fullback, Jim Crotty, scored from the Purdue 3 early in the third quarter.

Wisconsin Tramples Marquette Cousins

By DAVE O'HARA
Associated Press Sports Writer

MADISON, Wis. (AP)— Wisconsin's football Badgers tuned up for the rugged Big Ten schedule by trampling their "cousins" from Marquette for the 16th straight year, 44-6, Saturday. Dale Hackbart and Billy Hobbs each contributed a pair of touchdowns.

Hackbart, an All-America quarterback candidate, turned in a brilliant first half despite a heavily-bandaged left knee and then let sophomore Jim Bakken carry most of the load in the final two periods.

The Badgers jolted Marquette midway through the opening quarter when Hackbart rolled out and fired a strike to reserve end Allan Schoonover for a 74-yard play to put Wisconsin on the Marquette 1.

Schoonover, a senior, never had caught a pass during his varsity career. But he hauled in Hackbart's aerial on his 47 and then tightroped down the sideline before being brought down from behind. Then Hackbart sneaked across two plays later.

Hackbart skirted end from five yards out for a touchdown in the second period and a few minutes later Karl Holzwarth booted a 25-yard field goal.

Hobbs scored on an 11 - yard jaunt and a 23-yard return of a pass interception. Bakken connected with Erv Kunesh on a 48-yard payoff maneuver and then tallied himself on a three - yard run.

Marquette's lone touchdown came in the fourth period on a 29-yard pass from Joe Schulte to Mike Shea.

Northwestern Defeats Iowa, 14-10 In Saturday's Top Tilt

Ray Purdin Intercepts Pass For 42-Yard TD That Decides Outcome

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP)— Northwestern halfback Ray Purdin carried an intercepted fourth quarter pass back 42 yards for a touchdown to erase defending champion Iowa's lead and give the Wildcats a 14-10 Big Ten victory Saturday.

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Dick Thornton, Northwestern's star junior quarterback, will be out for almost the entire season.

Dr. Stephen Reid, the team physician, Saturday night announced that X-rays showed Thornton's left ankle is fractured. He estimated that Thornton will be out of action for six weeks. Northwestern has seven games remaining on its schedule.

The comeback triumph was accomplished without the services of the Wildcats' great quarterback, Dick Thornton, who suffered a sprained ankle returning the opening kickoff and sat out the game.

Purdin's sprint also took the sting out of a bizarre Northwestern decision in the first half in which the Wildcats turned down a successful field goal to try for a 1½ yard fourth down touchdown. The strategy backfired when quarterback Johnny Talley's pitchout was bobbled.

The option was set up when Iowa was penalized on the 20-yard field goal, booted by Mike Stock.

The loss, Iowa's first in defense of its Big Ten title, was the second shock in as many days for Hawkeye fans. Coach Forest Evashevski Friday announced he was leaving when his contract expires in 1963 and apparently was open for offers after the 1959 season.

Purdin's interception of sophomore quarterback Wilburn Hollis' pass came only minutes after Iowa end Don Norton had grabbed Ron Burton's bobble of a handoff and dashed 47 yards to give the Hawkeyes a 10-7 lead.

White Sox Awed By Vastness Of Coliseum

By JOE REICHLER

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Chicago White Sox—most of them—took an awed first look Saturday at the Los Angeles Coliseum and its fabled left field screen.

"The thing," as the fence is referred to here, didn't bother the players too much. But they were awed by the vastness of the stadium — and concerned about the park's unfavorable background.

"It doesn't impress me as much as Fenway," said Manager Al Lopez, referring to the left field fence in Fenway Park, Boston. The Coliseum's 75-foot-high screen stretches across from the 250 to the 320-foot line. Fenway's is 313 feet from the plate.

"The Boston fence looks closer," said Lopez. "But maybe that's because you can see through this screen — and Fenway's is solid green.

"What concerns me more is the background. It's going to be rough, trying to see the ball through all these white shirts. I think it will be even worse for the fielders than the hitters."

The tiers of seats behind the outfield — vacant during most games — will be filled for all three games. The stadium holds 92,500 for baseball and every seat is sold.

Ted Kluszewski, hero of the White Sox' first-game victory over the Dodgers, declared he had no intention of changing his batting stance to take advantage of the screen.

"Any time you start fighting this thing," he said, "you're in trouble unless you're a singles hitter like Wally Moon (Dodger outfielder). I'm just going to swing the bat."

"You could stack a lot of hay here," remarked Billy Goodman.

"As much as I heard all about it," said Earl Torgeson, "it still is a shock to see it."

Dick Donovan, scheduled to pitch Sunday, admitted the fence may bother him a little.

Wesleyan Stops Lake Forest, 24-7

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP)— An 80-yard runback with an intercepted pass by Art King Saturday highlighted Illinois Wesleyan's 24-7 victory over Lake Forest in College Conference of Illinois action.

Bob Kennedy's 2-yard pass to Dennis Bridges after Lake Forest fumbled away the ball on the Foresters' own 26 gave Wesleyan a 6-0 first quarter lead.

In the second, McLain scored on a one yard sneak and completed a 56-yard pass to Dick Durkee to set it up. Jack Fearn booted the point. Wesleyan leading 12-7 at halftime.

Wesleyan scored in each the third and fourth quarters on Jim Beveridge's 7-yard run and a 16-yard sprint by Jerry Armbruster.

MacMurray Beats Greenville, 8-0

The MacMurray College soccer squad fought their way through a cold drizzling rain and a slippery field yesterday to trounce the Greenville College Panthers 8-0 on the home field. The Highlanders have won both of this year's starts, while Greenville has a 1-1 record.

Ernie Ostheimer, Tom Allen and Ron Price booted in goals in the first period to give MacMurray the lead which was never threatened. Ostheimer tallied twice more in the remaining quarters to ice the game for the Clan. Others scoring were Tony Taubert, Ron Price, Jack Broser and Dennis Skoff.

Goalie Dave Cassidy made an outstanding defensive effort for the Clansmen as he blocked the Panthers' many serious scoring attempts. Freshman goalie Tom Riney showed much promise for Coach Bill Wall's Highlanders as he made several good stops with the freshman team in the closing minutes of the game.

Millikin Bows To Carroll, 28-0

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — Carroll scored three times in the first half and once in the fourth quarter to defeat Millikin 28-0 Saturday.

Fullback John Rechner made the first TD on a 1-yard plunge. Don Pruefer, a reserve fullback, followed with another 1 - yard plunge. End John Budde made the third TD on an 18-yard pass from halfback Ken Hill. Budde scored the final touchdown on a 9-yard pass from reserve quarterback John Davis.

The home stretch at Aqueduct race track is a fraction short of one - quarter mile long. The quarter pole is at the turn for home.

Georgia Tech Downs Clemson

ATLANTA (AP)—Clemson's Bill Mathis startled Georgia Tech with a 99-yard touchdown dash, but the Yellow Jackets rode superior speed and gritty defense to a 16-6 football victory Saturday.

The loss was the first of the season for Clemson which entered the game ranked sixth nationally. Tech, rated No. 7, is undefeated in three outings.

Two sophomore halfbacks, Johnny Welch and Bobby Gene Harris, were key men in Tech's offense, expected to suffer from the loss of their regular halfbacks to injuries.

Harris got Tech's first touchdown march rolling with a 21-yard sprint to Clemson's 26, but on the next play was hurt and left the game. Quarterback Fred Braselton kept the march going with some short passes and scored himself on a sneak.

Welch got into the game later and scored Tech's second touchdown on his first run as a varsity player.

Tech was ahead 7-0 when Mathis took the second half kickoff at his one, shot up the middle, cut sharply to the right and outraced Tech's angling defenders.

Placement specialist Tommy Wells, whose kicking provided Tech's winning margins against Kentucky and Southern Methodist, added some insurance with a 37-yard fourth quarter field goal.

Texas Longhorns Run Roughshod Over Cal, 33-0

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The high flying Texas Longhorns shook three backs loose for 40 yard touchdown scampers and used a bristling defense Saturday to make California a third straight shutout victim 33-0.

Halfback Rene Ramirez, gracefully tailing a bruising interference corps, curved 46 yards for Texas first score to give 20,000 rain-soaked fans and a national television audience a preview of coming events.

Sprinting sophomore Jack Collins, whose Texas-record 82 yard quick kick led to Texas second score, spurted 44 yards for one touchdown with three seconds left in the half.

Two scoring pass plays, one for 19 yards and another for 11 yards, preceded a bull-dozing 40-yard rumble by 210-pound Texas fullback Mike Dowdle to cap the scoring.

The out-manned Bears got their best chaance to score when a fumble gave them possession on the Texas 17. A stiff defense and two penalties set the Bears back to the Texas 45 before a fourth down punt.

It is the first time since 1933 for a Texas team to hold three opponents scoreless. The victory is Texas' fourth straight shutout over a two-year period.

There's Nothing Anemic About Neal's Big Bat

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Charlie Neal is the smallest, lightest, skinniest, and most nervous Dodger of them all. He may also be the sickest, as he claims, but there's nothing anemic about the way he swings a bat.

The Los Angeles second base star looked like the healthiest hospital case in the country Friday as he powered two pitches by Chicago's Buck Shaw out of Chicago's Comiskey Park in the Dodgers' 4-3 triumph that evened the World Series at a game apiece.

"I think I have an ulcer," moaned the 156-pound, muscle-minus mauler. "My stomach has been giving me fits for a week."

The 5-foot-10 infielder pressed his fingers over the low part of his abdomen, ever so gently, and said:

"Right here. That's where it hurts. I feel all knotted up. Especially at the beginning of a game. I'm all right when it's over. It comes and goes. That's why I think it's an ulcer."

What did the club doctor say?

"Oh, he doesn't know," said Charlie. "Nobody knows, not even Alston (Manager Walt Alston). I don't want anybody to know.

"I'm afraid to let the doctor examine me. I'm liable to be right about the ulcer. Then I'll really be sick. No. I'd better wait until after the Series to let him look at it."

If Alston can be guaranteed that the other Dodgers would hit like Neal, he'd order an ulcer for everybody in the lineup.

Trainer Sam Lankford of the University of Florida football team has posted a sign in the dressing room. It says: "Don't be a nail—be a hammer."

Coliseum Stage Set For Largest Game Crowd In History

By JACK HAND

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A roaring crowd of 92,000-plus, the largest ever to see a World Series game, is expected to greet the Los Angeles Dodgers Sunday as they return to the Coliseum all even with the Chicago White Sox going into the third game.

Don Drysdale, the strikeout leader of the majors with 242, is scheduled to pitch for the Dodgers against Chicago's Dick Donovan in a battle of right handers. Game time is 1 p.m. local time (4 p.m. EST). After their 4-3 victory in Friday's game at Chicago, the Dodgers were made 11 to 10 series favorites.

California has waited many, many years for a World Series. Finally it has arrived. It will be played in the huge uncovered football stadium that serves as a grotesque home park for the Dodgers. The 42-foot screen stretching from the 251-foot foul line into left center offers a target unique in the major leagues.

Most of the White Sox never saw "the thing" until they worked out Saturday afternoon.

After Friday's game in Chicago, Manager Walter Alston was asked if the Coliseum wouldn't give his Dodgers a tremendous advantage.

"No, not a hell of a lot," he said. "The only thing is that we are used to the thing (screen) and they are not. That is the only advantage, except the usual chance to get last licks."

Drysdale (17-13) is a side-arming right hander who was the sensation of the National League at the mid-season mark but slumped in the last half. In fact, the tailspin started after he had earned the unique distinction of starting two All-Star games in the same year.

Donovan (9-10) drew the Coliseum assignment over left hander Billy Pierce (14-15) who has been the ace of the Sox staff until Early Wynn and Bob Shaw took over this year. Apparently, Lopez didn't want to risk a southpaw in the Coliseum where Cincinnati's Joe Nuxhall and Chicago's Art Ceccarelli are the only left handers who ever have beaten the Dodgers with complete winning games.

Donovan is strictly a "stuff" pitcher who banks heavily on the slider and the sinker. Donovan was 5-5 in July but missed almost a month from July 21 to Aug. 16 due to a pulled muscle in his right shoulder.

The Dodgers were fed up with all the talk about the Go-Go Sox, especially after they had cut down Sherm Lollar at the plate with the potential tying run in the second game.

"Go go Sox," yelled Clem Labine. "Suddenly they are the slow, slow Sox."

"Go go Sox. That's all I've heard since the series started," said another Dodger. "We've stolen three bases and so far they haven't stolen any."

Charlie Neal, who hit two home runs and drove in three of the runs in Friday's victory, is the leading Dodger hitter with a .444 average. The only extra basers of the Dodgers' 17 hits were Neal's two homers and the pinch homer by Chuck Essegian. That tied the score in Friday's game.

Ted Kluszewski, a National League castoff, was hitting a hot .500 for the White Sox with four hits in eight trips including his two homers and a single in the opener and a single in the second game. Al Smith and Jim Landis each was hitting .429. All three of Smith's hits were doubles.

The players, who share in the receipts of the first four games, were looking forward to big sell-outs in the Coliseum Sunday and Monday. The fifth game, Tuesday, also will be played in Los Angeles but the players don't cut into that gate.

William Penn Coasts To 34-0 Victory Over Illinois College

The victors amassed 439 yards net rushing and picked up 17 first downs to IC's 10. William Penn 'ate' up 338 yards on the ground and picked up an additional 101 yards via aerial tosses to score once in the initial frame and three times in the second period for a 27-0 halftime lead. Fullback Jack Boender, who accounted for 117 yards rushing, tallied two of the three TD's in the second stanza.

Quarterback Neal Johnson also turned in a sterling performance with 122 yards rushing to his credit and by engineering all the balanced scoring drives.

Fumbles and pass interceptions once again proved costly to the Blueboys who had a net total of 176 yards. Passing accounted for 59 of the yards and running plays gained an additional 117 yards.

Illinois College's only scoring drive came late in the first quarter on a drive to the Statesmen's 15 but a pass interception halted any further threats. William Penn recovered three of IC's five fumbles on the slick and muddy field.

The victory evened Penn's mark for the season at two wins and two defeats. The Blueboys are now 1-1-1.

This was the first of four homecoming engagements IC will take part in this season. Next Saturday at 2 p.m. the Blueboys will entertain Principia in their homecoming contest. Principia defeated Graceland College Saturday, 26-13.

Lawrence Slips Past Monmouth

MONMOUTH, Ill. (AP)—Lawrence College cashed in on two intercepted passes for quick third quarter touchdowns Saturday to slip past Monmouth 14-8 in a Midwest Conference football game.

Halfback Jim Schulze passed 11 yards to end John Dunning and dashed 6 yards for both Lawrence scores. Schulze also passed to halfback Gary Scholdel for two points after the second TD.

Lawrence's Charlies Scruggs had intercepted passes on the Monmouth 17 and 30 to set up the scores.

Monmouth tallied on a 40-yard pass from quarterback Pete Suffield to halfback Pete Margetis early in the fourth period. Suffield passed for two points to end Carl Goss.

Lawrence now has a 2-1 record in conference play; Monmouth 1-2.

Tennessee Gains 22-6 Win Over Mississippi State

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Gene Etter, a little do-it-all reserve tailback, ran, passed and kicked Tennessee to a 22-6 victory over Mississippi State Saturday in a Southeastern Conference football game.

A partisan crowd of 28,000 watched with delight as the 165-pound Chattanooga speedster ran for two touchdowns and passed for a third before retiring midway the third quarter.

Mississippi State scored its touchdown in the fourth quarter when quarterback Bill Tohill took a lateral from fullback Bill Schoenrock and raced 56 yards.

Tennessee, the nation's ninth-ranked team, played an alert game, grabbing four State passes and turning two of them into touchdowns. The Vols tallied their other 6-pointer after recovering a Maroon fumble on the visitors' 40. The Vol line twice turned back state scoring threats inside its 5. One drive stopped on the Tennessee 2, the second on the 3.

Woody Hayes Denies Throwing Punch At Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes, is accused of slugging the brother of a Pasadena sportswriter after his Buckeye footballers lost a 17-6 intersectional game to Southern California Friday night.

Hayes denies it, but admits he might have shoved someone.

Los Angeles Examiner sportswriter Al Bine, who claimed Hayes intended to hit him, retorted:

"If Hayes said he didn't throw a punch, he is an unmitigated liar."

Said Dick Shafer, the man who took the reputed punch:

"My back hurts where Hayes' fist landed. I never even saw him or the blow coming and he then hurled me against a wall and out the main door leading to the dressing room."

Shafer, his brother Bob, and other writers were waiting to interview the Ohio State team following the game.

Bine, a veteran boxing writer, said he saw Hayes swing with a right "and I just ducked under it. He was cursing at us, saying he told us not to come into his room. No one said a word to him. He just yelled at us to get the hell out."

Other eyewitnesses said Hayes then rushed into his dressing room and when he emerged more than 20 minutes later, failed to mention the incident.

Alston Moves Hodges Up In Batting Order

By ED WILKS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Dodger Manager Walt Alston, "satisfied that we got a split in the first two," moves right handed power guy Gil Hodges higher in the batting order when the World Series shifts to the Coliseum for Sunday's third game.

Moving Hodges from sixth to fifth, past Norm Larker, breaks up a string of three lefthanded hitters — Wally Moon, Duke Snider and Larker. They faced White Sox pitchers in the first two games at Chicago's Comiskey Park.

Thus far, Hodges has done little in the series — two singles in eight plate appearances for a .250 average.

"You figure you want your righthanded hitters higher in this park," said Alston, sitting in street clothes in the Dodgers' dugout during Saturday's brief workout.

"It didn't make much difference in Chicago, where it is equal to left and right. And it's also easier to hit and run with Larker than with Hodges. But here...," he added, making an unnecessary nod toward the steel screen barrier that stands out in left field.

The screen, beckoning rather than barring, rises 40 feet and extends towards left center where a 320 foot marker rests at its end. Down the left field line, it's only 251 feet. There is no marker there.

The only other change for the Dodgers, squared one-all with the White Sox, is Larker's normal shift from right field to left. A first baseman, Larker has something less than an outfielder's arm — a weakness the Sox exploited by taking extra bases in the first two games.

Scalpers And Gamblers Plague Series In LA

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Scalpers and gamblers are out to make a killing on the three Los Angeles World Series games, police said Saturday.

A check of the haunts of scalpers shows they are asking—and apparently getting—huge profits.

And police say the city has been invaded by well-heeled Eastern gamblers. As one vice squad officer put it: "It's frankly more than we can handle...all have more money than I've ever seen."

Officers said they will make every effort to curtail betting, and will arrest anyone wagering on the series. The games here are Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

A newsman posing as an avid Dodger fan made a "shopping tour" of scalper haunts Saturday, saying he was willing to pay any price. His report:

At a downtown hotel the bell captain offered him two tickets for the three games for $165. Regular price: $60.

At a downtown bar the bartender offered 20 $2 tickets for $150. That's $110 more than the regular price.

At another hotel he was offered $10 tickets for triple their face value.

FAN BREEZES

BY STAN SPOTTS
Journal Courier Sports Editor

A thought for food — Some restaurant owner in Jacksonville should look into future bookings for visiting football and basketball teams. Monmouth was seeking plate dinners for 40 persons including players and coaches Friday night but to no avail. It seems no one wanted to put on the extra help required to feed such a gathering and as a result, the Zippers had to be fed in the JHS cafeteria. There are other football and basketball teams coming here this season and it might be a good thing if one reputable eating establishment in a town of 24,000 population could cater to the visiting teams.

The Shouses and Spotts were among the 64,891 fans watching Illinois upset Army Saturday in Memorial Stadium. It was a perfect day except for the traffic jam around the construction area near the stadium. We had good seats on the 42 yard line 39 rows up and we didn't see any rain until returning through Mt. Pulaski. The Illini victory climaxed all of our expectations. We watched Gary Hembrough of Roodhouse (86) play a lot of ball and the 6-2 sophomore has the goods in his favor to play a lot in the next two years. Mel Meyers and Johnny Counts along with captain Bill Burrell and Jim and Bill Brown were outstanding. Burrell was especially outstanding with his bone-jarring tackles.

— o —

Illinois messed up on several close scoring chances in the second half. If Illinois had scored when coach Dale Hall substituted illegally after the Illini had failed to pick up the necessary yardage on the Cadet 17, the writers would have stressed the blunder. Hall's Cadets had gained possession on downs with six minutes left to play in the game but the penalty covered the necessary yardage on the illegal subs and the Illini had a first down on the 12. They fumbled on the first play however and Hall was let off easy.

— o —

The Cadets didn't do anything on the ground but QB Joe Caldwell's passes threaded the needle and this made an interesting offense of the lonesome-end attack. A crushing Burrell tackle took care of All-American candidate Bob Anderson early in the first half. The official football program carried a picture of a local boy on the front cover. Bill Lewis, a former Crimson quarterback and now battalion commander of the Navy R.O.T.C. at Illinois, was pictured with representatives of the Army, Air Force and Marine R.O.T.C. commanders. One of the Illini football managers, Mary Paxton of Pittsfield, was also pictured in the 50 cent program.

What is our modern-day football fans coming to? The slightest bit of rain or a prediction of rain starts the telephones jumping at the office or at Radio Station WLDS. And they all want to know if the game or games have been called off. Why? I put the question to the readers. This is football — not Little League baseball. Football is supposed to be played come rain, hail, sleet or snow. Naturally if the weather is good, there's no doubt. In extreme cases such as tornado warnings, light failure or some other form of severe storms, then it's understandable if a game is called. The weather may play an important part in the final outcome but very seldom does rain or a forecast of rain ever postpone a game. Let's accept football for what it stands for — a rugged game for rugged individuals who don't care if it rains or shines.

LSU, Northwestern And Ole Miss Enjoy Saturday Triumphs

By ED CORRIGAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Louisiana State, Northwestern and Mississippi, college football's big three, raced to victories Saturday, but Army, No. 4 team in the country, fell before Illinois.

LSU, as expected, cut down Baylor, 22-0, and in the process kept its record against the Bears intact. Baylor never has scored a point against LSU. Billy Cannon registered one touchdown and set up another. The Bengals from the Bayou were No. 1 in last week's Associated Press poll.

The Cinderella kids from Northwestern defeated Iowa, 14-10, after a bizarre piece of Wildcat strategy backfired. With the score deadlocked at 0-0 in the second quarter, Northwestern's Mike Stock kicked a field goal.

But a penalty for roughing the kicker was called against Iowa. Instead of keeping the 3 points, Northwestern took the ball on the Iowa 4-foot line and failed to score.

As it turned out Iowa, defending Big Ten champion, and ranked No. 5 grabbed a 10-7 lead in the third quarter, but Ray Purdin of the Wildcats intercepted a pass in the final quarter, ran it back 42 yards for the winning score. Northwestern played the entire game without the services of star quarterback Dick Thornton who sprained his ankle running back the opening kickoff.

Mississippi, No. 3, had no trouble downing Memphis State, 43-0. It was nothing more than a good workout for Ole Miss.

But Army, a 10-point favorite, and hoping to crash the big three, was soundly whipped by Illinois. And to add insult to injury, the Illini came up with a "lonely end" offense—Army's specialty—to riddle big holes in the Cadets.

Another member of the top 10 to go down was Clemson. Georgia Tech turned the trick 16-6. But this was not much of an upset since Clemson was ranked No. 6 and the Engineers No. 7.

Purdue thrashed 8th-ranked Notre Dame, 28-7, so the final count left four of the first 10 teams in the nation beaten and battered.

Tennessee, No. 9 turned back Mississippi State, 22-6, and Texas crushed California, 33-0, in the television game of the week. The triumph was the Longhorns' third in a row. They have yet to be scored on.

Oklahoma and Auburn, ranked second and third right behind Louisiana State just a week ago, started the long road back with victories.

The Sooners started in quest of their 12th straight Big Eight championship by clobbering Colorado, 42-12. That made 72 consecutive league games without a setback for Oklahoma.

Auburn, its 24-game defeatless streak snapped by Tennessee a week ago, bounced back at the expense of Hardin Simmons, 35-12. The game was close for three quarters.

Bears Hold On To Nudge Colts

BALTIMORE (AP) — Quarterback John Unitas of the Baltimore Colts threw three last period touchdown passes Saturday night, but they weren't enough to overcome his earlier troubles and the Chicago Bears held on for a 26-21 victory.

The Bears posted all their points before Unitas got clicking to run his National Football League record of at least one touchdown pass a game to 27 straight.

It was the first loss in two games for the defending NFL champion Colts and the Bears evened their record at 1-1.

The Memorial Stadium crowd of 57,557 saw Unitas complete only 3 of 12 passes and have as many intercepted in the first half.

Richie Pettibon returned the first interception 33 yards for a Bear touchdown. The second by Erich Barnes set up a 33-yard field goal by John Aveni who also booted a 42-yarder in the third period.

Ed Brown pitched the Bears into position for a one-yard touchdown plunge by Rick Casres and threw a 35-yard scoring heave to Harlon Hill in the second period.

Grand Jury Favors Separate Quarters For Young Prisoners

Possibilities for separation of younger prisoners from more hardened prisoners at the Morgan county jail were pointed out by a committee of the Grand Jury which visited the jail on an inspection trip after its regular session last week.

The committee suggested that a possible addition to the present building at the east end, approximately 12 by 21 feet, two stories high, as a means of solving the problem.

Judge Creel Douglass in instructing the Grand Jury, mentioned that suggestions for separation of prisoners have been made by both County Judge John B. Wright and State's Attorney Charles J. Ryan.

A committee from the Grand Jury selected to inspect the jail signed the report Friday, and submitted it to the court and state's attorney for filing.

The report of the committee follo. :

TO: THE HONORABLE CREEL DOUGLASS, CIRCUIT JUDGE

We the members of the Morgan County Grand Jury for the May Term, who visited the Morgan County Jail, with to make the following report:

We note that there is a need for accommodations to separate younger prisoners from the older, more hardened prisoners. Possibilities were discussed for such separation. One suggestion was a possible addition to the building at the East end—to be approximately twelve feet by twenty-one feet, two stories high.

This committee recommends that the problem be studied and some action taken to supply separate quarters for the younger prisoners of Juvenile Court.

The jail is badly in need of paint and general repair. The Sheriff's quarters appear to be well kept.

Respectfully submitted,

Tells Winchester PTA Of Need For Greater Interest

by Nancy Hainsfurther
(Winchester Correspondent)
(Telephone PI2-5520)

WINCHESTER — Educators and district officers of the Parent Teacher Association told a small group of interested parents gathered at the thirty-eighth annual conference including seven counties in Winchester Thursday of the need for more interest in the school by the parents.

Education in the area was traced to one of the first teachers here, Stephen Douglas, in the opening session of the day-long conference by County Superintendent of Schools, Henry Corrie.

Harold Sohrbeck, who serves as school and community relations chairman, told the forty people assembled in the high school auditorium for the afternoon meeting that the PTA shouldn't finance things but take on the role of education and be interested in it. The subject of foreign language being taught in the schools came up with various fields of thought being heard. It was discussed that in some schools language is taught after regular classroom hours.

Parents were also urged to create a respect for teachers in the home so that this is carried to the school room making more harmony between the parent, child and teacher.

Evening Program

In the evening, Mrs. Isaac Loose stressed the need for parents to be more concerned in the education of their children and she urged the thirty-five attending the session which was opened by Mrs. William Hanback singing two selections, to educate themselves on the school situation. At this time books and pamphlets were mentioned to aid in this study.

Mrs. Loose and Mr. Sohrbeck served on a panel with Mrs. Paul Smith and Mrs. Paul Vannier answering questions from the audience. They were asked if the PTA organization was becoming obsolete and answered that it would not as long as parents and teachers existed and as long as parents showed an interest in what their child was doing in school.

Discussion groups assembled with the following topics, How to Reach Parents Who Do Not Attend Meetings; How We are Obligated to Golden Jubilee Scholarships (teach in Illinois two years); Why Object to Projects; and How to Eradicate Obscene Literature.

A nominating committee for the district director to serve in 1960 composed of Rev. John Seed of Morgan County, Mrs. C. R. Calder of Cass County and Mrs. Dale Bradshaw of Scott County, was appointed.

Soil Laboratory Puts In A Busy September

During the month of September the Agricultural Extension Service has been of special help to Morgan county farmers in the field of farm planning, Farm Adviser George Trull reported Friday. This has been particularly true in soil treatment planning and in livestock planning.

One hundred and eleven farmers had soil from one or more fields tested in the Morgan county laboratory during the past month. The number of acres tested amounted to 2,967. The county laboratory is owned by the Morgan County Farm Bureau and is supervised by County Extension staff members. It is checked regularly by the University of Illinois Soil Testing laboratory. All recommendations for soil treatment based on the tests are made by the farm adviser or the assistant farm adviser.

Acidity, phosphorus, and potassium tests are made and recommendations are given as to the amount of limestone, phosphate fertilizers, and potash fertilizers to apply to obtain maximum yields. So far this year, tests have been made for 451 farmers and have covered 12,932 acres.

Nearly all of the farmers using the laboratory during September were given assistance in deciding what kind and how much fertilizer to apply for their wheat seedings this fall, or for other fall fertilizer treatment.

"The laboratory saves Morgan county farmers several thousand dollars each year by enabling them to apply soil treatment by actual need rather than by guess," the farm adviser said.

The month of September is also a time when livestock farmers must make many decisions concerning their livestock operations in the coming year. The Extension Service assists them with their livestock planning by providing outlook information.

The September livestock and feed outlook meeting was attended this year by 95 farmers. The outlook information was made available to others by means of radio programs and news stories.

Illinois Farmers Outlook Letter

HOG PRICE PROSPECTS SHOW IMPROVEMENTS

The first signs of improvement in the hog situation have appeared. Farmers in ten leading hog-producing states have reported that they intend to cut their December-February farrowings by 4 percent.

If farmers carry out these farrowing intentions, market supplies will begin to decline next summer, and prices could then improve.

In the meantime—this fall and next winter — market supplies seem likely to be a little larger than they were last year. Returns to farmers may be disappointing, but probably not disastrous.

A recent USDA report on the pig crop gave the following facts for 10 corn-belt states:

1. The number of hogs over six months old on farms Sept. 1 was 6 percent larger than the year before. Most of the market hogs in this group will be sold by the end of September.

2. The number of hogs three to six months old was 5 percent larger than the year before. These hogs will provide the nation's pork during the next three months, October through December.

3. The number of hogs under three months was only 3 percent more than last year. These hogs will supply the winter market.

4. Farmers intend to have 5 percent more sows to farrow in September through Novermer than they had a year ago. Hogs from these farrowings will make up the bulk of the market supply during next April through June.

5. Farmers reported intentions to have 5 percent fewer sows farrow from December through February than during this period a year ago. Hogs from these farrowings will make up the market supply for about the third quarter (July-September) next year.

These facts are useful in assessing the outlook for hog producers, but several other things should be considered:

1. The farmers in these 10 states produce about three-quarters of the nation's pork.

2. Farmers seem to be cutting production faster than they intended three months ago. In June they reported that they would increase June-August farrowings by 6 percent but the actual increase in pigs saved was only 3 percent. In June they reported that they would increase September - November farrowings by 8 percent, but now they say only 5 percent.

3. Reports of farrowing intentions are not forecasts. They are gathered and published to show what farmers are thinking, so that they can change their plans if that appears to be desirable.

4. Half of the total decrease in intended winter (December-February) farrowings is provided by a single state — Minnesota. Other states reporting cuts are Nebraska, Indiana, Missouri and Kansas. The following states report intentions to hold winter farrowings even with last year: Illinois, Iowa, Ohio, Wisconsin and South Dakota.

On the basis of present prospects, hog prices seem likely to range around $13 to $15 a hundred pounds during the next six months.

Department of Agricultural Economics

University of Illinois fruit crops specialists point out that stored apples require a low temperature and a high humidity. A 32-degree temperature and a humidity ranging from 90 to 95 percent are best.

Weight losses from shipping fever cost Illinois farmers over $2,000,000 a year.

Harvest haste, long working hours and revolving gears, belts, shafts and husking and snapping mechanisms of harvesting equipment make it easy for the careless farmer to have an accident. Be careful. Keep your harvest free from accidents this fall.

Seek Vaccine To Control Mink-Killing Infection

URBANA — Sixty - five mink, enough for a three-quarter-length coat or two full capes, were recently given to the University of Illinois College of Veterinary Medicine.

These mink have an important job, according to Dr. J. O. Alberts. They must show which of several vaccines will prove effective against a new strain of virus infection that is expected to reach Illinois in a short time.

Moves South

Entire mink populations have been wiped out by this new virus disease, called virus enteritis of mink, which started attacking mink in central Canada in 1949. It moved east and south through Canada, attacking in different areas with varying degrees of severity. This virus infection may kill only a few young mink, or it may kill nearly all the mink in an area.

The virus crossed into Wisconsin in 1957. It is moving down through Wisconsin and, if it follows the spread pattern of most virus infections, it can be expected to enter northern Illinois in the near future. It could cripple the Illinois mink industry, which represents a growing part of the state's animal economy.

May Cancel Shows

Dr. Alberts and his assistants are working against time. Mink ranchers throughout the country are so concerned about the disease threat that they are considering calling off their exhibitions this year.

This would stop the showing of new mutations so highly prized by furriers. The price of mink might go as high as—well, ...t many things can go much higher than the price of mink.

King-Sized Hog Business On The McPherson Farm

BY ARTHUR THATCHER

JERSEYVILLE — Raising hogs on an extensive scale at his 1200 acre farm in the White Hall vicinity is one of the tasks of Marford McPherson, who was a Jerseyville visitor last week.

In addition to his hog raising program, McPherson also operates a trucking business which works in with his large farming and livestock activieies.

When he delivers a load of tile for the White Hall factory, which makes an unusually excellent type of sewer and other tile, to the East St. Louis vicinity, he brings back a load of tankage and packing plant products for the home manufacture of supplement for his growing porkers.

He also hauls livestock for scores of other farmers in the Greene county locality, as well as his own finished hogs.

McPherson reported that he has 300 brood sows on his farm and every day seems to be farrowing day. Special farrowing quarters with modern heating equipment for severe weather is among the pig farm equipment.

The feeding of so many hogs is naturally a big task, but much labor is eliminated by the use of self feeding and watering devices.

McPherson has three types of hogs which he produces at his farm, Durocs, Hampshires and Hybrids. He prefers the Durocs and Hampshires over the hybrids, he stated. "When we have a dead pig," he said, "you can almost bet with safety that it is a hybrid."

McPhereson uses all grain grown on his farm in his feeding program and buys a lot of corn and other feed to satisfy the appetite of his large droves.

U. I. Plans Sale Of 80 Acres In LaSalle

URBANA — The University of Illinois announced it will offer for sale 80 acres of LaSalle county farm land, and invites sealed bids on this land.

This 80-acre tract is part of 640 acres given to the University in 1955 by Laura M. Weber. It lies six miles away from the other farms and is too small to operate as a seperate farm unit. The land is in Richland township, two and three-tenths miles south and two and one-half miles east of Tonica.

All of the land is tillable except for a small farmstead. There is a house, machine shed and corn crib on the property.

Recently the University bought 80 acres of land across the road from one of the other Weber Trust Farms. This land will replace the property now offered for sale.

The income from the Weber Trust Farms has been used to continue improvement of the soil and buildings begun by Miss Weber. The University has also expanded the livestock program. The terms of the gift called for using any surplus income from the farms to "benefit or be of help to the College of Agriculture."

Bids must be in by Nov. 16. Bid forms and information may be obtained from D. G. Smith, 301 Mumford Hall, Urbana.

This Week.. at Dixon Springs

Rate of gain in cattle is shown only by time and scale weights. You cannot measure the distance between the eyes, the length of the tail or any other body part of a calf and from these measurements predict whether the calf will be a rapid or a slow gainer. Furthermore, the rate of gain feature is no respecter of grades. You can find rapid gainers and slow gainers in either choice or medium-grade cattle.

A Myth

A certain myth in cattle-breeding circles ties rapid gains to the coarser, poorer grading of cattle. It may have developed by confusing size with animal conformation. Good conformation is simply the symmetrical disposition of parts. Parts that are well put together are pleasing to the eye, whether the animal is on the hoof or hanging from the butcher's rail. You can find pleasing conformation on a big animal as well as on a small animal.

Photo Differences

To bring this point into sharper focus, let us tell you a little incident that happened on the Station. We were asked to get photographs of cattle that would show differences other than size between rapid and slow gainers. The perfect group of cattle for this picture story was 26 yearling bulls. They were perfect subjects because, since weaning a year ago, they had been fed together at the same bunk and had grazed the same pasture. As we had expected, there were wide differences in rates of gain. We knew there were wide differences in grades. But, when we tried to pick animals for pictures to show a relation between grade and rate of gain, we were stymied. The rapid gainers ran the gamut of grades, just as did the slow gainers. Needless to say, we did not get the pictures.

About Grades And Gains

The average gain of these bulls during the past year was 473 pounds. Twelve of them gained more than the average, and 14 gained less. There was no difference in the average grade score between the top 12 gainers and the bottom 14, and an identical spread from high to low grades was found in the two groups.

Selecting the four top-gaining bulls and the bottom four, we found the average gains to be 548 pounds and 380 pounds. But even here, with such wide differences in rate of gain, we found almost identical grade scores.

What does all this mean? It means that the scales and the grader's book are both important in putting together a herd of money-making cattle. And isn't it gratifying to explode the myth that rapid-gaining cattle are possible only if we are willing to sacrifice quality?

H. A. Cate.

Predictions are for a plentiful supply of excellent quality apples this fall.

The Popular Image

A good many knowledgeable observers seem not to understand one of the fundamental facets of American political life, which is that most of the times voters do not make their judgments among men and parties on the basis of specific policies and events.

Right now, for instance, it is being argued in some quarters that if nothing big comes out of the Khrushchev-Eisenhower talks and the general exchange of visits, serious damage will be done to the Republicans' 1960 presidential hopes and particularly to Vice President Nixon.

This latter is said to be so because Nixon is of course a part of the Eisenhower administration and on his summer visit to Russia declared himself in favor of the Khrushchev-Eisenhower exchange.

But this argument assumes what cannot be fairly assumed—that since Mr. Eisenhower, with Nixon's support, initiated this new approach he will therefore be blamed for its failure.

In good sense we must recognize that this may not happen at all. The people may simply blame Nikita Khrushchev, and credit the President for a "good try." Thus, even with failure, the end result could be to find him, his party, and Nixon in as strong or stronger a position than now.

All the evidence of history indicates that the people generally make broad judgments of men and events, and do not pay much attention to the refined details of policy and program. The over-all image is what they carry in their minds to the polls.

They appear to make their decision as to where the critical areas of policy lie—whether in the national economic field, in foreign affairs, or whatever. And then they pick the man or the party, or both, whom they feel they can most trust to handle matters in that field.

To accept that popular judgments are made this way is not to be cynical or to argue that the people "cannot or do not think." It means merely that they cannot, in most cases, weigh the fine points of policy or retain in their heads the massive detail involved in running a government.

America as a democracy will be on the right track so long as the broad images are accurate, and the resulting broad popular judgments are consequently well-founded. Voters don't have to be political scientists.

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Most of the other new shows on TV this season are copies of the successful ones. At least we're trying something different."

This was George Nader's brave appraisal of his new series, "The Man and the Challenge," which appears on NBC Saturday nights. Judging from his rundown on it, I had to admit that it did sound different.

The man is Nader and the challenge is how far human capacity can be extended.

"I am a doctor working for a private agency that deals with government and industry. The organization is similar to one set up by the government after the last war. Officials were alarmed to find that Americans often did worse than citizens of underprivileged countries under trying circumstances, such as prisoner camps.

"My job in the series is to see how far human performance can be pushed. It's a scientific fact that we can accomplish more than we do if we use all of our resources. It's essential now that humans catch up with science, which has pushed far ahead. We've got machines now that could be operated by a single man if he had 23 fingers."

Nader delves into such things as the American astronauts are undergoing to prepare for space flight. He has also done stories concerning such earth-bound activities as bullfighting and skiing.

The handsome actor has himself found out about human capabilities since departing movies for TV. Last year, he did 20 live hours as Ellery Queen.

"We never got our lines until two days before the show," he recalled. "The scripts were unplayable and the directors and actors had to work out the lines. If anybody had told me I could work that hard before I did it, I would have said they were crazy."

If Teen-Agers Could Vote, Dick's Their Pick; An International Scandal Is Narrowly Averted

BY JERRY BENNETT
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA) — There was a whole bevy of 50 girl-type teen-agers on the stairs in the National Press Club lobby when distinguished pundit Walter Lippmann spoke there on his 70th birthday. Club members who saw the gals were a bit surprised to think that the septuagenarian columnist had as much sex appeal as a crooner or disc jockey, but there the fans were, ready to scream.

They weren't waiting for Lippmann at all, however. They were waiting for Vice President Dick Nixon, who came to the luncheon along with several members of the cabinet to honor the world-famous writer.

When Nixon came in, the gals gave him a hand. Flattered, he waved and stopped to chat with them. They turned out to be students in a business college in the Press Club building.

"I suppose you're all going to be good stenographers when you graduate," observed Nixon in his best campaign manner.

A cute blonde in the front row corrected him quickly. "Secretaries!" she said. Nixon blushed and retreated.

A HOTEL CLERK here gave two members of Kremlin boss Khrushchev's entourage the wrong room key by mistake. When the Russians opened the door, they were shocked to find a woman.

Hurrying back to the main desk, they demanded, "There's a woman in our room. Get her out."

When the startled clerk realized he had goofed, he immediately apologized. The Russians, completely red-faced, said they wanted to apologize to the lady.

A State Department representative was summoned to accompany them. He knocked on the woman's door and announced:

"There are two officials of the Soviet Union here who would like to apologize for their intrusion."

The woman yelled back, "Tell them that I accept their apology. Now all three of you go away and let me get some sleep."

WHEN CHIEF JUSTICE Earl Warren stood up to take a bow at a recent Shoreham Hotel wingding, he found himself the target of another Supreme Court nifty. The master of ceremonies said charges that the justices argue too much among themselves reminded him of a yarn about three monks.

They belonged to an order which required them to observe five-year periods of silence. At the end of this time, a monk who had anything to say could speak one sentence. Only one monk, however, could talk during each five-year period.

One day, one of the monks announced, "I can't stand the food around here."

Five years went by before another monk said, "I think the food is just fine."

Another five years passed, and then the third monk declared, "I wish you would stop this interminable bickering and get down to work."

TO KICK OFF their first Washington exposition, office equipment manufacturers bounced an electronic message off a Russian satellite. The message, which was picked up at their exhibition hall, said:

"Dear Mr. Khrushchev, Thanks for the use of your punctual Sputnik III. We're using it to invite you to drop by our show and see what makes American business work."

WASHINGTON partygoers were surprised the other night to learn that Mamie Eisenhower's teenage niece has become a song writer. She's 15-year-old Mamie Moore, and her first song is a torch ballad called "That's What Memories Are For."

When Hollywood vocalist Marie McDonald introduced it at a recent Gaslight Club party, a Democratic National Committee wag cracked: "I wish my daughter had written that. I would have had her dedicate it to the Republicans in 1960."

IRRITATED BY ALL the security restrictions on Khrushchev's coast-to-coast tour, a reporter cracked:

"The first people on the moon won't be scientists. They'll be cops, State Department Security boys and Russian MVD agents with orders to 'Get back behind the ropes!'"

BUSINESS TOOK a sudden slump at the Sheraton-Park Hotel cocktail lounge recently when patrons saw a 5-foot kangaroo leap by the door followed by a basset hound. Turned out, though, that they were not suffering from hallucinations. The animals had just arrived to help promote a new line of children's toys.

The kangaroo's name is Victoria. Her canine friend is Morgan Jr. Trainer Bern D'Essen believes the bar customers would have gotten an even greater shock if he hadn't been holding Victoria on a leash. "Victoria would have probably joined them," he explains, "She's crazy about scotch and soda and always makes a pig out of herself on potato chips."

PINS TO THE RESCUE

WINCHESTER, Va. (AP) — Winchester's Rescue squad had its crash truck on exhibit at a picnic, at which a Richmond safety engineer was a special guest. The engineer ripped the seat of his trousers while scrambling over the vehicle. The Rescue Squad quickly came to his help with safety pins.

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Red China are caught in a myth wrapped in irony within a dilemma.

The myth: This country insists Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists on Formosa are the legitimate government of all China and not the Red Chinese who have now controlled the entire mainland for 10 years.

The irony: This country has pressured Chiang into agreeing he will not try to retake the mainland by force. Without force it seems certain he can never go back to the mainland or conquer its Red masters.

The dilemma: How can this country agree with world communism on world problems—like disarmament—unless Red China, which the United States refuses to recognize, is included?

True, though better relations with the Soviet Union, the United States could settle problems involving only the U.S.S.R. and the West. For instance, Berlin, which has nothing to do with China.

But it seems impossible to think of settlements on world problems without agreement with the Red Chinese. Agreement would almost of necessity require closer relations.

Therefore, if relations with the Soviet Union improve, it seems like relations with Red China will, too, although this will go against the grain of many in this country who are strong for Chiang and violent against the Red Chinese.

A lot of things happened in 1949. This country, which had been giving Chiang billions of dollars in aid while his government was on the mainland, suddenly washed its hands of him. His government was corrupt and his situation hopeless.

That same year the Communists took over the mainland. He fled to Formosa, an island 100 miles away, and set up shop there with the remnants of his government. Even in early 1950 President Truman refused to intervene between him and the Reds who threatened to take Formosa. Truman refused to protect him.

This changed instantly when the Korean War began. Truman ordered protection for Formosa. This has been American policy ever since. The Red Chinese by their subsequent tactics froze this American policy solid.

They sent "volunteers" into Korea; they were branded aggressors by the United Nations; they still hold American prisoners; they have repeatedly shelled Formosa; they continually threaten to retake it.

Although 32 nations have recognized the Red regime, this country not only refuses to do so but has been able to keep the Reds out of the United Nations.

Only a few weeks ago in the U.N. this country blasted Red China in these words: "In nine years it has promoted six foreign or civil wars—Korea, Tibet, Indochina, the Philippines, Malayan, and Laos. It has fought the United Nations."

Last year Secretary of State John Foster Dulles visited Chiang on Formosa and the two men issued a joint statement in which Chiang agreed he would not try to use force to retake the mainland and throw out the Reds.

It was clear why. The United States wouldn't help him make the try. Without such help he could do nothing. Thus, in effect, he agreed to die of old age on Formosa, while claiming to be the rightful master of the mainland.

Thus the United States and Red China are in an almost absurd historical position.

Older People Are Targets of Quacks and Fake Products

BY MARIE DAERR

Older people are without a doubt the prime target of the quack and the unscrupulous.

So says a man who knows, George P. Larrick, commissioner of the United States Food and Drug Administration. Commissioner Larrick made this statement before the Senate Subcommittee on Problems of the Aged and Aging, in Washington, D.C.

"As our aging and aged population grows bigger, so do the activities of frauds and cheats," Larrick told the subcommittee. "Fake drugs, vitamins, nutritional products, dietary compounds, hair restorers, sex hormones and so forth are definitely on the increase.

"Many of these products are being sold house-to-house and through well-financed organizations operating nationwide. They represent business grossing hundreds of millions of dollars each year."

Larrick's term for these people isn't pretty. It is "criminals-at-large."

"They not only rob our older citizens of their meager savings and earnings, but they jeopardize their lives," Larrick said. "Fake products are often harmful. Also, they steer people away from reputable products which could be of great help."

According to Larrick, older people are the main target of these unscrupulous people for two reasons.

"Many of the degenerative diseases, cancer, arthritis, rheumatism, heart disease and the like, still fall in the realm of the unknown," Larrick said. "Quacks and quack products, therefore, have a relatively wide and open field in which to play.

"Also, many of these diseases are extremely serious, causing much suffering and even death. In their desperation, older people who are afflicted with these ailments are likely to become the victims of promoters who claim their products will relieve or cure."

Although the Food and Drug Administration steadily warns on frauds and cheats, Larrick said it can do only a partial job, with present money and manpower.

"We need to find out more about what effect given products have on older people," Larrick said. "We need to find out more about the nutritional needs of older people.

"We must find out whether their reactions to drugs and vitamins is different from that of younger people. We must get information that will help us take better regulatory action against individuals, products and companies.

"We also need new inspection and investigating programs, where we suspect quackery. And we need to provide our older citizens with information on both the beneficial and the harmful products."

The Power of Preaching

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

When I went from college to begin my ministry, many years ago in the Canadian backwoods, in the region between Georgian Bay and Lake Huron known as the Saugeen Indian Peninsula, a region then wild, but which has become a popular summer resort, I took with me a little, red-covered book, which was destined to have a great influence upon my life and ministry.

It was Principal Tulloch's "Religious Thought in Britain in the Nineteenth Century." Somewhere I had picked it up for a nickel as a "publisher's remainder," and had never previously opened it. An interesting and important book in itself, its impact upon me was the statement that "Robertson of Brighton," a minister of whom I had never even heard, was the greatest preacher of the century.

I found that the Rev. Frederic D. Robertson, a Church of England minister, of Brighton, England, dying at the early age of 37, had left notes and manuscripts from which seven volumes had been published, and I was anxious to know upon what Tulloch had based his praise.

At the village of the Lion's Head, my nearest contact with "civilization," I found a scholarly Presbyterian minister who had the volumes in his library. A generous soul, he loaned me these two at a time, and I have formerly told in this column of the thrilling experience with which I delved into the sermons, especially into the first sermon on "God's Revelation of Heaven."

When I referred to Robertson's sermons some time ago I suggested that interested readers might probably find them in local libraries. Mrs. J. G. Crisp, of Kermit, Tex., wrote me that it was not in the local library, and asked where it could be procured.

My own seven-volumes-in-one, a comparatively large book, was published by Harper Brothers, of New York, in 1898. I have not inquired whether it is still in print. As the sermons were in my heart and life, rather than on my bookshelves, I have sent my copy to Mrs. Crisp, with the suggestion that if she does not wish to retain it she might pass it on to others, or put it in the local library.

It should be out of print, I venture a suggestion. During the years that my editorial work in Boston occasioned frequent visits to New York I spent many happy times browsing along the second-hand bookstores in lower Fourth Avenue. I believe there is an Association of Fourth Ave. Booksellers, which means a great aggregation of available books to which inquiries could be addressed. Many out-of-print books are there.

To get back to Robertson of Brighton, it is over a hundred years since the great preacher died. The name, the immense circulation of his sermons, and the voice long-dead, and the continuing influence, all suggest the power of preaching.

One-Dollar Dinner for Four Is Welcome and Tasty Idea

Customs Vary on How to Celebrate Boss' Birthday

A group of secretaries wants to know what is the proper thing to do when the boss' birthday rolls around. Should the secretary have an office party, tipping everyone off ahead of time to bring gifts?

Should she forget the party and just buy the boss a gift herself? Should she arrange a lunch at a nearby restaurant with the boss as guest of honor? Or should she ignore the whole thing?

Customs vary in different offices. But if the boss is married (as most bosses are) the wise secretary is careful not to dream up any celebration his wife could possibly object to.

The luncheon, especially if there are cocktails before it is served, may seem just a trifle chummy—from the point of view of Mrs. Boss.

A birthday cake served at the regular office coffee break would seem a more suitable celebration. As for asking everyone in the office to bring a gift, that would probably embarrass the boss, himself—and so isn't a very good idea.

If the secretary decides to confine the birthday celebration to a "Happy Birthday" and a gift, she should buy something that is not too expensive and is not too personal.

Getting the boss something for his office would be much more appropriate than getting him something to wear.

But from a purely practical point of view, gift-giving in offices has become such a widespread habit that it is often more of a burden than a pleasure. So where gift-giving hasn't been the custom in the past, it's best not to start it.

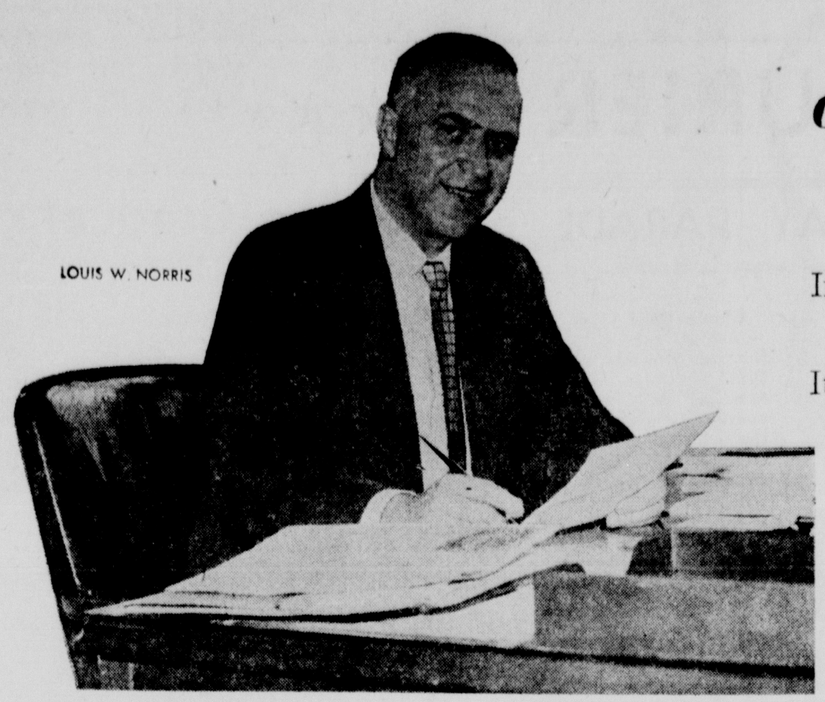

After all, the simplest, easiest and least complicated way of recognizing an adult's birthday—whether he is a boss or just a co-worker—is to say, "Happy Birthday" with a great big friendly smile and let it go at that.

matter of FACT

Noah Webster, in his series of dictionaries and in his famous Spelling Book, attempted to make English spelling more consistent and more phonetic. For example, he dropped the "u" from words like "honor," "color" and "flavor" and he omitted the "k" from words like "music" and "public." Despite his efforts, he was not able to simplify the spelling of many words, so present-day English-American must still be regarded as imperfect.

The MacMurray Philosophy

1. A conviction that the liberal arts are basic for a MacMurray man or woman. Every student, regardless of major, studies courses in English, foreign language, history, philosophy, and science.
2. A plan of co-ordinate education which recognizes and promotes the individuality of men and women. Separate classes for men and women the first two years; separate student governments; separate newspapers—all foster the ideal of a women's college and men's college.
3. An honor system and student government which develop self-reliance and honesty among all students. Major tests are taken without proctors.
4. A plan of on-campus living in college residence halls only. Students have the experience of group living, assisted by a trained resident counselor in each hall. There are no fraternities or sororities.
5. A social program for weekend enjoyment which makes the use of student cars on campus unnecessary, and, therefore, cars are not allowed. Students come to MacMurray from thirty states and ten foreign countries; the exchange of ideas, the rooming with a student from another part of the country, the inevitable coke dates and dances, make campus living an experience which is itself an education. MacMurray students do not use alcoholic beverages.
6. A commitment to the Christian ideal. Each student attends a non-sectarian chapel service on Tuesday of each week. Courses in religion or philosophy are required of all students.

This is a drawing of the first building to become a part of MacMurray College for Men. It's called Blackstock House, a men's dormitory, named for Mrs. Ira Blackstock, a benefactor to the college.

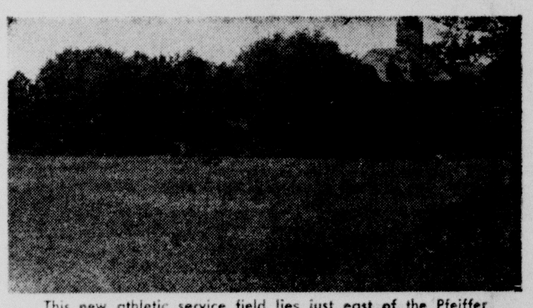

New 75 car parking lot on East Morgan Street is available for the community when not in college use.

Extensive renovation and rehabilitation of present campus buildings have been accomplished.

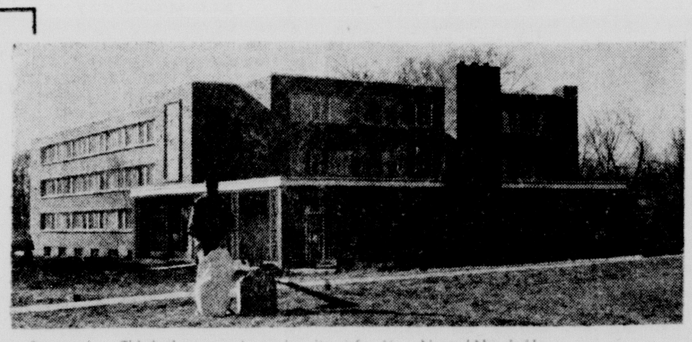

Through the generosity of an alumna, Ann Marshall Orr '13, the auditorium in the Music Hall and the Social Room in Main Hall have been beautifully redecorated and refurbished.

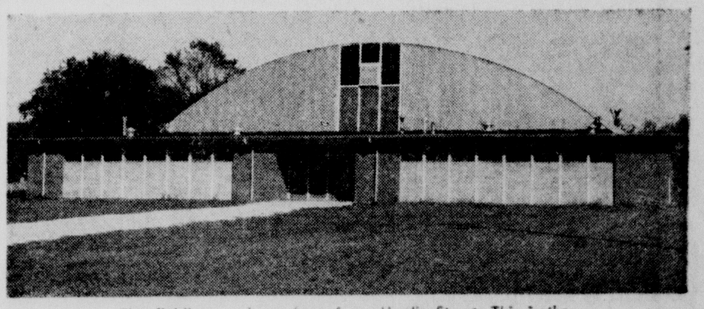

Harker Hall has been renovated—a new floor has been laid. The Annie Merner Chapel is in the process of being redecorated, and McClelland Dining Hall has been air-conditioned. In addition, a filtering system has been installed in the swimming pool, and two new professional organs have been added to the equipment in the Music Hall.

Important alteration and additions have taken place in the administrative offices.

Service classes for both colleges are held here.

Here's a look at what's going on out east on Routt Street. It's the new athletic field named for a recent benefactor. Gibson Field will not only have the track you see here, but will provide a baseball and football field as well.

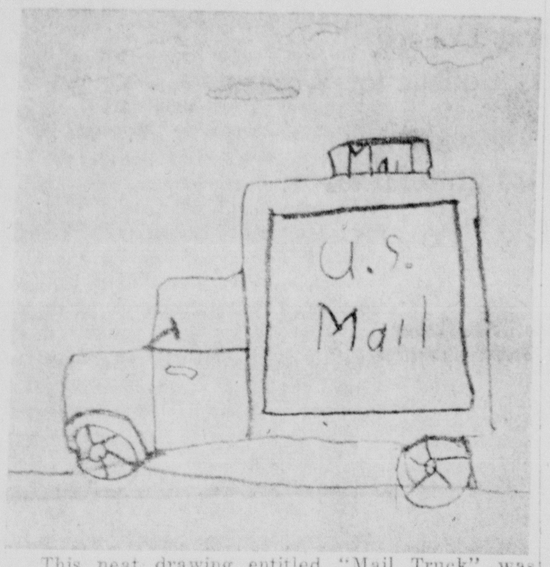

This is the second new dormitory for Men. Named Norris House by the trustees, this dorm houses 100 men, and is the dining center for the men.

The fieldhouse, shown here faces Hardin Street. This is the home of the Highlanders, and has been filled to capacity for athletic events of all kinds. It will seat 800 people.

Girls Like To Sew

By Mrs. Otto Dorr

Part 2: Trott Wants Rug Too

"How do you make a rug? Trott questioned, "I need one too," He reached for the corduroy pieces saying, "They are mine."

"Go ask your mother for some more," Minnie interposed. "You will need a strong needle and a spool of linen thread. We'll help you start a ball of carpet rags."

Trott wheeled off, but his sister stopped sewing. There are no more rompers," she said.

Back Comes Trott

Squeak, squeak, squeak! the tricycle returned faster than before. Tied to the handlebars hung a brown shopping bag.

"Socks, socks!" shouted Trott, "My socks, Daddy's socks, everybody's socks! Look!" and he poured them on the grass.

"They are pretty colors," Lela said "but the strips will be short."

"Not so very," experienced Julia corrected, "You can cut them in spirals and skip the holes. Did you bring a needle and some thread, Trott?"

Securely wrapped at the bottom of the brown bag lay the threaded needle and a spool of stout linen thread.

Julie cut for him until presently, every one was again sewing. Bye and bye they began to wind their balls.

"When they weigh a pound there will be enough for a little rug," Alma told them. "We can sew at home, too."

Trott Sews Too

Trott sewed his sock pieces together. They would never pull apart, but his ball was the smallest of all when he rode home. His grownup friends sewed sock upon sock until his ball also weighed a full pound. Then all the carpet rags went to the weaver.

"I will send word when all the rugs are finished," she had said.

One day the rugs came home, a bordered one for Julia's room, a hit-or-miss one for Lela, a striped one for Minnie, a blue one for Florence, a pink, green and lavender one of apron cuttings for Alma, and a soft thick one of corduroy strips for May.

"Look, there is one of your socks next to mine," he said to his father." I like those lumps, they are my sewing."

Story Of Rubber

By Jerry Lawless

How It Got It's Name

A century and a half ago rubber began to be used a little more widely. The interesting story of how it got its name is connected with that period.

Englishmen had been importing it in gradually increasing amounts and some of the scientists and alert businessmen of the time were studying its practical use.

One of the greatest of these men was Doctor Joseph Priestley, a famous chemist, teacher, and author. He wrote in one of his books, in about 1770, that he had seen a substance "excellently adapted to the purpose of wiping from paper the marks of a black lead pencil."

And so, because Englishmen had found something that would rub out lead pencil marks and leave the paper clean, the strange material with which they did it, gradually became known as "rubber."

Because this substance came from the land of the Indians and because of the above use, it came to be known first as "Indian Rubber," and then as "India Rubber."

Dangerous Plan

When rubber first became popular, the great bulk of it was supplied by the luxuriant tropical forests surrounding the head waters of the Amazon in Brazil. After this first era of producing rubber, there followed a second in which rubber from the majestic, uncultivated trees of that country began to vanish from the world markets, and plantation rubber came to take its place because of a man named Henry Wickham.

In 1875, he defied the government of Brazil, and at a great personal risk, smuggled the priceless seeds of the rubber tree out of that country.

The English botanist nurtured these seeds and multiplied them, and so, by 1905, this fact along with the fact that rubber plantations had sprung up also in the Far East, accounted for the high prices of that time. Because of this, today Brazil provides less than three per cent of the world's rubber while the plantations furnish all of the rest, which is more than 800,000 tons of natural rubber per year.

Synthetic Rubber

When we speak of synthesizing a substance such as camphor or quinine, we mean duplicating the natural product, but synthetic rubber can mean a substance with rubber-like properties.

By 1849, rubber imports still only amounted to 2,150 tons per year. However, the demand later rose by leaps and bounds and soon there were attempts to produce rubber synthetically.

As early as 1879 a Frenchman, named G. Bouchardit, heated natural rubber to a high temperature and obtained a volatile (gas - forming) substance called isoprene, which he succeeded in converting into a rubber - like material.

Three years later W. A. Tilden, in England, obtained isoprene from turpentine, and then, by Bouchardit's method, changed it into a tough substance like rubber. Seven years later, Tilden noted that isoprene standing in a stoppered bottle had changed to rubber found that it united with rubber, forming a tough elastic compound.

By 1910, S. V. Lebederin, in Russia, had made a rubber-like compound from butadiene, the simplist of all the hydrocarbons related to rubber.

Between 1909 and 1912, isoprene was synthesized in Germany and made into rubber. Then, during World War I, the Germans, finding themselves cut off from supplies of natural rubber, started manufacturing "methyl rubber" dimethylbutadiene (isoprene with an extra methyl group).

The method required six to eight months of temperatures up to 150 degrees F. They manufactured 2,350 long tons of this methyl rubber and found its best use in hard rubber battery jars for submarines.

What Do You Think?

By Jerry Lawless

What Is "Good Life?"

Spinoza, who is noted as being a wise man and a great thinker, (a philosopher) has said these things about the "good life." Do you agree with him?

1. To create happiness in our lives, we must free the mind of our emotions or feelings.
2. An arrow which points the way to happiness is the understanding that everything and every event in nature is a fixed and a reasonable (rational) one.
3. A thinking person leads a good life.
4. The highest good, "the intellectual love of God," is found in the person leading the good life.
5. Leading the good life includes the attempt to benefit yourself intellectually.
6. A man is free when his actions are decided solely by his thinking.
7. Searching for truth is the greatest aim in the good life.
8. The wise man is scarcely at all disturbed in spirit, but accepts things as they are.
9. Happiness or unhappiness in our lives depends on what we love.

To Gain The Good Life

Spinoza sets fourth 4 definite principles for the perfection of man in the good life:

1. We must learn to make ourselves clear and understood.
2. We must use pleasure only to preserve health.
3. We must get only enough money and things to preserve health.
4. We must get understanding by being a part of things—the world's problems are our problems too.

I can agree with the principles that Spinoza sets fourth about the good life, although they are somewhat idealistic.

I disagree with Spinoza's idea that we must "free our minds from the emotions which becloud them." All feelings, in some form, I believe, are helpful and natural in man.

I believe that man lives the "good life" while he is eagerly working toward the goals for the good life such as those set forth by Benedict De Spinoza.

What do you think about Spinoza's idea of "the good life?"

ROCKETS AND SPACE

By Walter B. Hendrickson Jr.

Nova Lands On The Moon

When the third stage of the Nova rocket has reached burnout the fourth and fifth stages which form the nose cone of the rocket separate and coast on toward the Moon.

After 2 days and 15 hours the rocket, which now weighs only 102,000 pounds, reaches the moon's gravity field. Now a jet of hydrogen peroxide is fired turning the rocket so that the four engines of the fourth stage point toward the moon.

The thrust of the fourth stage's motors can be varied so that the rocket may hover for about a minute to find a good landing place. When the landing place is found the rockets' thrust is cut so that the space ship settles gently down on its four landing supports. These supports span a distance of 40 feet to give the 40-foot-tall rocket a steady support.

On the moon the Nova has 49,100 pounds of weight left since nearly all of the liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen fuel of the fourth stage has been burned. 13,100 pounds of this is the fourth stage and landing gear, the other 36,000 pounds is the fifth stage and manned capsule.

The guidance system of the Nova can take it to the moon untouched by human hands. In fact, the scientists working on the project plan to send an unmanned Nova rocket to the moon first to serve as a spare in case something goes wrong with the manned rocket.

Manned Flight

On the manned flight the crew keeps an eye on the auto-pilot to see that it's not making any mistakes. If the automatic controls do make a mistake the crew can correct it.

After exploring the moon for 12 days the two-man crew sets the auto-pilot to take the ship back to earth. The fifth stage fires for two minutes and 15 seconds; the rocket then falls toward earth for two days.

The fuel tanks of the fourth stage make a cylinder which fits into the center of the fourth stage. This reduces the danger of the return rocket being damaged in a rough landing on the moon.

At take off from the moon the fourth stage weighs 36,000 pounds. By the time it reaches the edge of earth's atmosphere all its liquid oxygen and kerosene fuel is gone so it now only weighs 13,700 pounds.

Back to Earth

When the space ship comes near the earth's atmosphere the 8,000-pound manned capsule is separated from the 3,800-pound tanks and motor of the fourth stage. The 19-foot-tall cone-shape capsule now re-enters the earth's atmosphere broad end first.

At an altitude of 50 miles and 3,600 feet a giant parachute opens and lowers the two-story capsule and its two-man crew back to earth.

The fuels and engines used by the Nova rocket are already being developed. Before they are used in the Nova they will be tried out in smaller rockets to get the bugs out of them.

BIRTHDAY PARADE

Here Come Marchers

Yes, boys and girls, here come our Birthday Marchers, and first in line is—

Roger Greg Hardy, son of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Hardy of RFD 2 Jacksonville. Roger Greg was 3 years old September 21. (His brother is marching today too.)

George Cowper

George Cowper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Estele Cowper of Glasgow, reached his tenth birthday on Friday, September 25, and brightens our parade with his fine smile.

George is in the fifth grade and is attending the new Winchester Elementary school. His principal hobbies include fishing, collection turtles, frogs and ants, and playing baseball.

George played shortstop on the Har-Bar Little League team in Winchester the past summer. George has a sister, Sandra, age 16, who is a Senior in the Winchester High School.

Carol Sue Campbell

This bright-eyed young lady, Miss Carol Sue Campbell daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Campbell of 1005 N. Diamond, had her very first Birthday Sunday, September 27.

Carole Sue celebrated the day with her Great-Grandmother, Mrs. Kate Stice of Winchester. Since they share the same Birthday they enjoyed blowing out their candles together.

Carol Sue's maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. John C. Peterson of Roodhouse RR3, and her paternal grandparents are Mrs. Charlotte Campbell of Naples RR1, and Ralph Campbell of Springfield.

Elmer Paul Hardy concludes our Birthday Parade for today — but he is the first October Parade marcher since he will be 4 years old October 8. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Hardy and brother of Roger Hardy who also marches today.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY to each and every one of our Birthday Marchers from all the Junior Page readers and your editor!

Your Birthday

To march in the Birthday Parade just send your name, address, age and birthdate—with a snapshot if you have one—to the Jacksonville Junior Journal Courier 2 weeks before your Birthday. Photos may be called for as soon as they have been printed.

If you have a party, write and tell us about that later.

Like To Make Model Planes?

By Joseph A. Smith

Are you one of thousands who like modeling? If you're air-minded (who isn't these days?) then model planes will appeal to you. If this doesn't then one of these will: boats, trains, automobiles, wagons, cannons, or military gear of various types.

If you're a beginner first choose the type of modeling you believe you'll enjoy most. Then go to the nearest model shop or large toy shop and purchase an EASY model. Start out easily and gradually get more difficult ones as you go along, and gain some skill as well as the "know how" connected with your particular chosen modeling field.

Let's take Model Airplanes as a good example. You'll be fairly flabergasted at the number of kits available to the modeler.

As a beginner it would be wise to first buy such necessary tools as both a HEAVY and a MEDIUM work balsa knife (it would be wise to have a spare package of blades for each on hand), and a small assortment of sandpaper. This is the bare minimum of equipment.

Next, decide whether you want to build solid display or flying models. If you decide on the former perhaps a smaller plastic model such as the ten inch Thunderjet will be just fine for a starter.

For a flying model most modelers start with an easy glider such as the Jetco Thermic B. It isn't hard to make, and yet all the major rules of flight adjustment can be learned with it.

Progressing to harder kits, you solid modelers may want a model such as Strombecker's F 86 Sabre jet or, better but a bit harder, a Monogram Mustang F 51 a fine model half paper, half wood.

You flying modelers next will choose between large gliders, rubber band powered models, and gas models. The glider builder can build them with up to six feet wing span! The rubber band modeler in time will build large ones.

Gas engine craft run in wingspans, from 1A engines with an average eighteen inches wingspan up to the large class C engine with a wingspan of 42 inches or larger.

When you've chosen your particular field ask your dealer to help you pick progressively more difficult kits. It's more fun that way.

Maine Trails

By Mabel Hall Goltra

The trail is just a narrow path
That's carpeted with moss.
That never feels a wagon wheel
Dragged by an old gray horse.

The moss is soft as velvet.
The bird calls soft and sweet.
I'd rather walk on mountain trails
Than on a busy street.

There's something quite aesthetic
About the customs where
The reindeer tread on velvet
While music fills the air.

No noise or blast of bugle.
No tired little feet.
But there is sweet communion
Where hills and valleys meet.

THEY WANT THE ANSWERS

IRVINGTON, N. J. (AP)—Detectives in this area are taking courses in hypnosis, interrogation, lie detection and amnesia-breaking.

Harry Arons, director of the Ethical Hypnosis Training Center, says he expects hypnotic techniques to be useful even though evidence obtained with them is not admissible in court.

A group of residents, bent on disincorporating the tiny village, narrowly missed getting the signatures of three-fourths of its registered voters—required for a petition to disband the town.

LEAVES A PLEASANT TASTE

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Those attending a state veterans' convention here had reason for leaving with a good taste in their mouths. The state commander is a pharmacist, and he handed out samples of mouthwash.

College Graduate

Isabella Gam, age 10, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Surab Gam of 400 West Michigan, calls her careful drawing "College Graduate." It is good to think, right here as school is getting well started, that each thing we learn helps us toward that day when we may be as starry-eyed as the girl in this drawing.

If you too like to draw, send in a picture—all your own work and just 4 inches square—to the Jacksonville Junior Journal Courier then come in for your Junior Journalist pencil and Junior Press card.

C Q Radio Hams — General Ticket Study

By Joseph A. Smith

Modulation Methods

I'll bet the first thing most of you readers want to do is to move to radio telephone operation (A-3). Which do you like best—75, 40, 20, 15, 10, 6, or even 2 meters?

Take your pick, but remember that the other fellow forms his opinion of you as a phone operator by the quality of your modulated signal and from your individual operating habits! Before going further, it would be wise to re-read "The Modulator" on page 100 in "How To Become A Radio Amateur."

As an example of a simple modulator let's build a small Heising type modulator for our little 2-tube code transmitter which will be modulated at 23 watts imput to the final amplifier when working A. M. phone (350 volts B-plus at 80 ma's).

Our little modulator will consist of a crystal mike whose output voltage is fed into a 12AX7 dual triode voltage pre-amplifier, next into a 6AQ5 driver-amplifier, and lastly this voltage (many times amplified) is fed through a step-up audio transformer into the grid of the 6L6GB choke Heising modulator power output tube.

With 330 to 400 volts on its plate and 225 volts on the other tubes—12AX7 and 6AQ5) it should easily modulate the 6BQ6GT final amplifier tube providing an audio choke is inserted between its screen dropping resistor and B-plus voltage source. Its screen is then "floating," in so far as audio is concerned. A pair of 6L6GBs or 6BQ6GTs in a push-pull plate modulator circuit would quite fully modulate the final also.

What To Study

Study this week should concentrate on Chapter No. 9 "Speech Amplifiers and Modulators," found in the handbook.

Also you should study General exam questions No. 46, 56, 58, 75, 77, and Amateur Extra Exam questions No. 256, 258, and 264.

Code practice from now on should continue to be made up largely of actual "from the air" signals such as tape, WLAW, and actual amateur band QSO's. Continue to push yourself a bit so as to gradually force up that speed.

Continue intensive practice aiming at a comfortable 16 W.P.M. speed before attempting to take the 13 W.P.M. code license tests.

BOMBS AWAY!

He bagged two squirrels. Then he aimed at a third but this squirrel had a weapon handy. It dropped a hickory nut squarely in Pittinger's eye.

WONDER WORLD

SOUR GUM AND SOFT MAPLE

By Rip Barnsdall

The sour gum tree is often mistaken for the pear tree at a distance because of its shiny leaves and small branches.

The leaves take on a brilliant scarlet color in the fall. Sour gums are usually found in swamp-forests or along lake shores.

The wood of soft maple is often used in the making of furniture. Sugar is sometimes made from the sap.

The soft maple commonly found near river banks or lowland woods. It is often planted as an ornamental tree.

Hazelrigg - Boyer Nuptials September 20

Miss June Frances Boyer of Franklin and Rex D. Hazelrigg of Jacksonville were united in marriage in a pretty early fall ceremony Sunday afternoon, September twenty, at Central Christian Church in Jacksonville. The Reverend Gerald Miller, pastor, officiated for the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Sally E. Boyer and Roy Sherman Boyer, Franklin, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hazelrigg, Jacksonville route one.

Large baskets of yellow and bronze glads against ferns decorated the altar of the church illuminated by yellow tapers in branched candelabra. Yellow and bronze mums with oak leaves, marked family pews.

During the nuptial prelude played by organist Robert Wegehoft, Mrs. Marie Hart of Franklin sang "I Love You Truly," "O Promise Me" and "The Lord's Prayer." Candles at the altar were lighted by Sheryl Reynolds, niece of the bride and Larry Tribble.

The bride's sister, Leona, was her maid of honor. Mrs. Jerre Sample of Jacksonville was bridesmatron and Joyce Reynolds, niece of the bride, was junior maid.

Don Hazelrigg of Jacksonville attended his brother as best man. Wayne Smith, Jacksonville, and Jack Fairfield, were groomsmen. The latter two and Donald Boyer, brother of the bride, and Richard Angelo, nephew of the bride, served as ushers. Michael Fry was ring bearer and Diana Reynolds flower girl.

Given In Marriage

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an ankle length wedding dress of white lace with net over satin. The snug bodice had long fitted sleeves tapering to points over the hands and a portrait neckline finished in lace motif applique. Seed pearls held the bride's mantilla type veil secure. She carried gardenias with white rosebuds and wore for her only ornament a single strand of pearls.

The maid of honor wore sheer net and lace over cocoa brown taffeta and the bridesmatron white net and lace over pale yellow. The junior maid wore the same combination over mint green taffeta. All wore headdresses and veils of white illusion and carried baskets of yellow and bronze mums tied with ribbons matching their respective costumes.

Church Reception

A reception was held at the church immediately following the ceremony. Yellow and white were used in appointments at the serving table. The three tiered bride's cake, centering the lace covered table, was decorated with yellow and white. A small corsage of mums topped the cake and yellow tapers were on either side of an arrangement of mums and fall leaves.

Assisting with the serving of refreshments were Mrs. Don Hazelrigg, Mrs. Anne Angelo, Mrs. James Reynolds, Mrs. Rosena Tribble and Miss Linda Tribble.

When the couple left for a honeymoon in northern Illinois and Iowa the bride was wearing a black and white costume with black accessories and the corsage taken from her wedding bouquet. Mr. and Mrs. Hazelrigg are making their home at 1804 South East street in this city.

The bride graduated in 1957 from Franklin High School and the groom the same year from Jacksonville High School. He is employed as manager of Montgomery Ward Farm store.

Barbara Biggs Plans Wedding In December

PITTSFIELD—Dr. and Mrs. H. Dean Artman announce the engagement of her daughter, Miss Barbara Ann Biggs, to Kenneth Charles Swofford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Swofford of St. Louis, Missouri. Earl D. Biggs of Jacksonville is the bride-elect's father.

Miss Biggs is a graduate of Pittsfield High School, with the class of 1958. Last year she was a freshman at Rollins College, Winter Park, Florida where she affiliated with Gamma Phi Beta, social sorority. The past summer she spent in summer stock at Southern Illinois University and is presently in her sophomore year there as a theatre arts major.

Granddaughter Of Area Residents Is Bride At Venice

ROODHOUSE—Ina Mae Cockrill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cockrill and Joseph Robert Ponce, son of Mrs. Lena Ponce, were united in marriage on Saturday, Sept. 5, at St. Mark's Catholic church in Venice.

Miss Cockrill is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. May of Roodhouse and Mr. and Mrs. William Cockrill of Manchester. She spent a number of summers in the homes of her grandparents.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attended by Mrs. James Daniels, matron of honor, Miss Gloria Ponce, sister of the groom, Miss Carol Mangi and Mrs. Joseph Foote, sister of the bride.

Her gown was made from white appliqued chantilly lace with long sleeves tapering to the wrists. Tiny satin buttons fastened the bodice at the back, and a bouffant skirt featured a ruffled tulle underskirt extending to a Chapel train. Her veil of silk illusion was attached to a crown of pearls. The bride carried white carnations and tuberroses on a prayer book.

The gowns of the brides attendants were fashioned of coral chiffon and taffeta. They were strapless and worn with matching stoles. Taffeta cummerbunds tied with bows at the back. Their headdresses were crowns with veiling in the same shade. Their corsages were pink carnations.

Attending the groom was Daniel McGee. Ushers and groomsmen were James Daniels, David Butler, Gerry Grandanoff, Joseph Foote, and Don Parente.

Demonstration Will Show Junior Women Meat Menu Technique

Members of Jacksonville Junior Woman's club are in for a 'treat' at the October dinner meeting next Thursday, the eighth, at Hotel Dunlap. With little exception most of the members are young housewives and alert to kitchen artistry.

Mrs. Robert Herr, October program chairman, has arranged for a representative of the National Live Stock and Meat Board, Chicago, Illinois, to speak, giving pointers and demonstrating, How To Stretch Your Food Dollar.

MORELAND MARTIN

Moreland Martin, prominent meat expert, is the man picked by the Board, to visit the Jacksonville club. The action-packed demonstration will employ actual cuts of meat. The A. and P. market manager, Jim Wagner, cooperated with Mrs. Herr in providing five roasts to be used through courtesy of the supermarket.

Mr. Martin will show how several appetizing meals may be obtained from each of a variety of cuts of beef, pork and lamb. He will also present reliable and accurate information, garnered by the Meat Board from years of scientific research, on meal selection, proper meat cookery methods, meat identification and the nutritive value of meat in diets of people of all ages. He will also demonstrate meat carving techniques.

Known Here

The National Live Stock and Meat Board is a familiar term in Jacksonville. For years this organization has co-sponsored with the Jacksonville Journal Courier the popular Cooking Schools held each year in the city.

The speaker will provide easy-to-follow suggestions on identifying different meat cuts as well as information on cooking the tender and less tender cuts.

Mr. Martin is the associate director of the Meat Board's department of merchandising, and is nationally known as an authority on meat. He has conducted programs on television in many parts of the country, exhibits at Fairs, livestock expositions and food shows.

At the close of the program the cuts of meat, after preparation, will be awarded to members of the club.

Opening lead—♠ 4

BY OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

South should really have opened with a two bid but chose to open one club only. North might well have passed but decided to respond one spade whereupon after a fast and furious series of bids South jumped to seven clubs.

His reason for the grand slam bid was that East had doubled four spades so that North probably was not very strong in spades and therefore would have more elsewhere.

West opened the four of spades and after one look at the dummy South wished that he had been considerably more modest in his bidding. Then he saw a ray of hope and with everything breaking just right proceeded to wrap up his contract.

He took his ace of spades, crashed the ace and king of hearts, discarding a diamond from dummy and ruffed a third heart. He came back to his hand with the ace of diamonds, ruffed his last heart, led back to the king of diamonds and ruffed his last diamond.

East and West had to follow all this time and now all South had to do was to lead dummy's last trump, finesse his queen and drop the king and jack under his ace. A lot of luck but he did give the cards a chance.

VIEW FROM THE BOX—Mother and daughter go tenting without benefit of tent. They're comfortably ensconced in a "View Box," a light, easy-to-erect aluminum structure on stilts which may be left partially open, as shown, or closed and weather-tight. Designer John Matthias of Pittsburgh, Pa., says it must be thought of as a tent, portable to any part of the landscape where it can be set up for a new viewing experience. Other uses, for the more practical-minded, could include garden, guest, play or summer house, beach cottage or hunting lodge, studio or camp. It's not yet available on the market.

Construction To Start Soon On Hospital Wing

JERSEYVILLE—Construction is expected to get underway within the next few weeks on the wing of the Jersey Community hospital. The firm of Herman and Salzman, of Chicago, architects for the main hospital building has been employed by the board of directors to prepare plans for the new wing.

The addition will provide seven additional rooms plus other facilities such as surgery set-up room, post operative recovery room, nurses station and storage facilities.

It will be air conditioned and all rooms in the wing will have private baths. While the rooms are designed as private rooms, they can be made into two bed rooms when necessary thus increasing the capacity of the hospital to 54 beds.

The hospital has been operating at more than capacity for some time and it has often been necessary to put patients in the halls.

An expansion program was in mind when the present building was constructed and the existing heating system, kitchen, operating rooms and other facilities were so planned that the addition can be services with the present facilities.

While bids have not been accepted for the addition, existing funds will pay for most of the wing and it will not be necessary to increase the hospital tax.

STEAK TIP

Like a steak medium-rare? If you are using one two inches thick, place it about four inches from high heat and broil twenty minutes on each side. This suggestion is for a steak taken directly from the refrigerator, not for one at room temperature.

Sally is of plastic sheeting, calibrated at various points. She's used in determining seating requirements for women. Sturdy Sam is the chair seat-and-back device. It approximates the weight of a 150-pound person. Sally's "boy friend" might object to this lap-sitting business, but "he's" out of the picture. It's a plastic manikin made to male dimensions, for determining seating requirements of men.

Crimsons Break Into Win Column With 14-0 Victory Over Zippers

By STAN SPOTTS
Journal Courier Sports Editor

Ronnie Tomhave and Ronnie Yates, two unheralded newcomers, provided some clutch running in pacing Jacksonville High to its first 1959 victory Friday night in a 14-0 win over Monmouth's Zippers.

Parker hit Tomhave with a 26 yard pass in the second quarter to set up the first touchdown and then Tomhave twisted his way into the end zone from six yards out. Freshman Ronnie Yates filled in for the ailing Gary Spangenberg and turned in some sparkling runs, especially in the second half. He picked up a needed first down from the nine to the Monmouth one to set up Ken Norton's diving plunge in the final stanza and the final score of the game.

Slow First Period

Both teams started slowly on the wet and muddy field with Jacksonville gtting off 14 plays to Monmouth's nine. JHS' deepest penetration of the period carried them to the Zippers' 36. Monmouth never got past its own 40 yard stripe.

Eight Point Quarter

An exchange of punts gave Monmouth possession on its own 18 with 8:21 left to play before halftime. Three downs and a minute later Monmouth was still stranded on the 18, where a punt situation prevailed. The snap sailed over the kicker's head and landed in the end zone for a JHS safety and a 2-0 lead with 7:21 remaining.

The Zippers kicked from their own 20 and Don Schillinger took the kickoff to the Monmouth 46 with 6:48 left. Schillinger picked up a vital first down on a fourth and three situation to the 36. Parker then hit Tomhave with a 15 yard pass and Tomhave drove to the 10 before the stop. Norton netted four before a twisting Tomhave eluded several Monmouth tacklers to score with 4:14 left before intermission. An off-sides penalty nullified a Parker to McCarty extra-point pass and Parker missed on the conversion attempt. The 46-yard drive was capped in seven plays from scrimmage.

On the last play of the second quarter, JHS' Billy Stanford battled a Monmouth receiver for a pass with Stanford stealing the ball after the catch. Stanford raced 52 yards to score but a whistle on the catch off-set the scoring run.

Start Final Drive

After taking a punt in the early minutes of the third period, Jacksonville had a pass backfire and Monmouth took over on JHS' 34. The Zippers fumbled on the first play, however, and Don Seymour and Bob Rieman of the Crimsons were in on the recovery. The highlight of the JHS drive was a 29 yard run by QB Dick Parker on a spread play. The play carried the Jacks to the Monmouth 38. Two more first downs on runs by Schillinger, Thady, Norton and Yates took Bob Kraushaar's Crimsons to the 16 as the third period ended.

Final Touchdown

Don Schillinger moved the pigskin closer with a seven yard pickup and then Ronnie Yates carried to the one on an eight yard run power play. With 9:35 remaining in the game, fullback Kenny Norton dove high over the line to score on the 15th play of the 66 yard march. Parker's PAT attempt was low and wide and the Crimsons led 14-0.

A fake punt and a 44 yard pass play in the closing minutes was Monmouth's only serious threat in the game. The two plays carried the losers to JHS' 16 where the drive ended on downs. A first down by Schillinger and two by Yates got the Crimsons inside of the Monmouth 30 but the 10-play series bogged down and Spangenberg punted out of trouble.

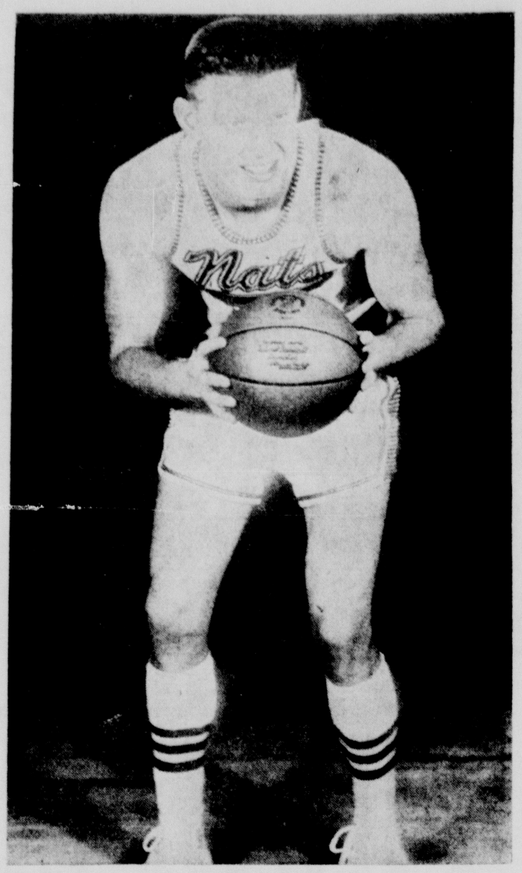

The Crimsons got off 53 running plays to Monmouth's 16. JHS dominated first downs 12-5 and in rushing, 173-49 yards. The Jacks completed one of four passes for 26 yards and had one intercepted. Monmouth didn't draw any accepted penalties while the Crimsons had 25 yards charged against them. JHS punted five times to Monmouth's four.

Rockets Stop Pawnee For Third Straight White-Wash, 25-0

PAWNEE — Bob Winstead's Routt Rockets combined a steady passing game along with a relentless aerial attack to blank Pawnee here Friday night in a non-conference affair, 25-0.

The victory was Routt's third consecutive shutout triumph in as many starts. The defeat was Pawnee's second in three outings.

Routt got a scoring drive underway in the first period with substitute QB Bucky Sullivan engineering the drive. Crazy-legs Fred Curtis capped the drive on a 13-yard run for a 6-0 spread.

QB Mickey Walker, shaken up on an earlier play, came back in to toss a 24 yard scoring jump pass to end Billy Tobin for the second first quarter TD.

Routt marched 90 yards to hit paydirt in the third stanza on a fourth down and 15 yards-to-go play on the Pawnee 15. Walker hit Tobin on a 10-yard pass and Tobin lateralled to Curtis who went over from the five. Walker hit Lewis on a PAT aerial and Routt held a comfortable 19 - 0 margin.

The last tally of the game came in the fourth period on a 40 yard pass interception by Fred Curtis, who set up his own scoring run with an elusive side-step.

Pawnee's deepest pentration into Rocket real estate was to the 49 yard stripe.

Once again, Routt's defense proved impregnable in limiting Pawnee to a pair of first downs. The Rockets kept Pawnee's defense off balance all evening with the combination running-passing game.

Friday Night Scores

Northwestern 21 Girard 6

PALMYRA—A MSM Conference game ended with Northwestern defeating Girard by a score of 21-6 in a hard fought battle that was scoreless for the first half. This gave the winning team a record of 3-0 and the losing team suffered their first defeat with two wins. In the second quarter Girard drew first honors by scoring on a pass play from Hayes to Sansom and Jenkenson failed with the conversion. Northwestern came back by scoring on a pass to Starkwether from Bob McKinney for 25 yards. McKinney ran the PAT and made it to set the score up at the half, 7-6, in favor of Northwestern. The third quarter was scoreless with fine ball handling on the part of both teams and then in the fourth quarter Bill McKinney ran around end for 16 yards and a Northwestern touchdown. Bill McKinney also ran the PAT which was good. End Starkwether then took another pass from Bob McKinney for 30 yards and fell into the end zone for another TD. Bill McKinney again ran the extra point and came through putting the final score at 21-6 in favor of Northwestern.

Virden 32 Waverly 0

WAVERLY—A balanced scoring thrust paced Virden's Bulldogs to a 32-0 victory over Waverly Friday night in the first MSM conference test of the season for both clubs.

Three touchdowns by Joe Garrison and single tallies by Bill Dodd and Bill Clinton provided Virden with its third margin of victory. Dodd also kicked a pair of points after touchdowns.

The loss was the second in three starts for Joe Doglio's Scotties.

Pleasant Hill 13 Carrollton 6

PLEASANT HILL — Pleasant Hill won over Carrollton in an Illinois Valley Conference game tonight with a close 13-6 victory which gave the winning team a 1-2 record against a 0-2 record for Carrollton. In the first quarter Gary Capps intercepted a Carrollton pass and set up the ball for a TD by Richards from the 31 yard line on the next play. The conversion failed and the score stood 6-0 at the end of the first quarter. The second quarter was scoreless with both teams playing good defensive ball. In the third quarter QB Griffith threw a pass to Robinson for a touchdown on a 9 yard play which put Carrollton in the scoring column. Steinberg intercepted a pass for Pleasant Hill and moved the ball up to the 3 yard line and then went over for a TD on the next play. The conversion was good on a pass from Richards to Sutton which put the score 13-0. The fourth quarter was scoreless for both teams as they tightened up their defense. Steinberg made a fine showing as he intercepted a pass in the second quarter and ran some 44 yards on its return. He also snagged two Carrollton passes in the last quarter but the team could not capitalize on them. Pleasant Hill attempted 4 passes and completed none while Carrollton attempted 14 and completed 4.

Roodhouse 26 Winchester 6

WINCHESTER — Roodhouse downed Winchester in a non-conference tilt that was played at Winchester and gave the winning team a record of 3-0 and the defeated team a record of 1-2. In the first quarter Winters went over on a 20 yard run to give Roodhouse a 6-0 lead at the end of the first quarter. In the second quarter it was again Winters on a 5 yard run along with Pollard who made a TD on a fine 10 yard run and then Pollard converted to make it a 19-0 battle at the half.

The second half saw more action in the air as Knox took a 9 yard pass from Hopkins to score a touchdown. Winters made the PAT with a run. The single Winchester TD came in the last quarter when Brown took over on a fumble and ran for 65 yards and a touchdown. However, Winchester was not able to add any more tallies and the game ended with Roodhouse winning over Winchester by a 26-6 score.

Auburn 33 Franklin 0

FRANKLIN—The Auburn Trojans handed the Franklin Flashes their third loss of the season Friday when they hung up a score of 33-0 in a MSM conference game that was played at Franklin. In the first quarter Bill Arassner scored from the 29 yard line on an intercepted pass. The point after touchdown was no good and the score stood 6-0. Near the end of the first quarter Jule Laurent scored on a plunge from the 3 and then caught a pass for the PAT to make it 13-0. The second quarter saw Arassner going over on a 4 yard drive and the point after touchdown was no good. Chuck DuBois ran around end for 9 yards to score and Phil Dumbrada made the PAT on a plunge. Dean Sargent then scored on an interception from the 9 yard line for another Trojan touchdown and again Dumbrada made the point on a line plunge, to set the score at the half at 20-0 in favor of the Auburn team.

In the third quarter both teams tightened up on defense and the quarter ended with neither team reaching the end zone. The final quarter was much the same defensive battle and neither team could march over the goal for a TD. One injury was reported as Bob Miller suffered an injury in the first couple of plays of the game but he managed to leave the field under his own power. The Flashes improved their brand of ball in the second half and finished the game in good style although they failed to score.

Officials: Deall of Alton; Jeffries and Davis of Springfield.

White Hall 9, Hardin 7

WHITE HALL— In the first quarter Marsh went 26 yards around right end for a White Hall touchdown and John Westerhold caught a pass for the extra point.

Terry Bland then took the kickoff for 80 yards and a few plays later the Hardin team went over for a TD from the 1 yard line over the middle. Bland added the conversion and the game was even at 7-7. During the second quarter neither team could gain enough yardage to push across the goal line and the half ended with a deadlock game. In the third quarter White Hall gained 2 points with a safety which put them out in front. Although White Hall knocked on the door of Hardin again in the last half many times they could not find enough strength to push it over. During the game White Hall piled up 10 first downs while Hardin gained only 3.

Brown County 7 Rushville 7

MT. STERLING—In a Midwest Conference battle at Mt. Sterling the Brown County and Rushville game ended in a deadlocked situation. The only scores of the game came in the third quarter when Mitchell went over for a touchdown. McCormick went across for the point after touchdown on a QB sneak. Then Paisley slid across for Rushville to even up the game with a 65 yard run. This gave Brown County High a one won, 1 lost and one tied record whereas the Rushville squad now has two wins against a one tie record.

Carlinville 7 Jerseyville 0

CARLINVILLE—A non-conference tilt saw Carlinville defeat Jerseyville in a close 7-0 game here Friday night. Neither team could push over the goal line in the first quarter for a score and in the second quarter Carlinville plowed over the line for the only score of the game. The TD was set up on a pass from McKee to freshman Ron Wilton who went over for the tally. McKee made the PAT on a QB sneak and the score stood 7-0 at the end of the half. In the third quarter Heyen intercepted a pass for Jerseyville and they threatened to score. Stinnett, Bloom and King all played outstanding defensive game for Carlinville and Keele and Boente were standouts for Carlinville on offense. This was the second win for Carlinville against one loss while Jerseyville has won two and lost one. Jerseyville attempted 9 passes and completed only 2 while Carlinville attempted 13 and connected with 8. The entire second half was played in the rain and hindered both teams very much. Jerseyville was at the goal line many times during the game but could not push over for the needed TD.

'I Thought He Could Make It:' Cuccinello

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—In a corner of the tomblike White Sox dressing room, third base coach Tony Cuccinello muttered:

"I thought he could make it. I thought he could make it. But he hesitated at second and they made a perfect play to get him at the plate."

The coach was referring to the key play in Chicago's defeat in the World Series' second game in which catcher Sherm Lollar, slowest Sox runner, was nailed at the plate by 10 feet on Al Smith's eighth-inning double. Lollar was trying to score from first with the potential tying run.

Said the disconsolate Lollar:

"I was running on the pitch, but I stopped at second because I didn't know whether the ball would be caught."

Cuccinello said Lollar had taken off from first on the three-two pitch which Smith clouted to the wall in left center.

"I honestly thought Lollar could score, so I waved him on," said Cuccinello. "Then I figured Smith could move on to third on the throw-in to the plate and we have the winning run there with none out. But there are two perfect throws after the retrieve and so Lollar is out by a mile."

The Sox dressing room was a direct contrast to Thursday's joyful scene after Chicago's 11-0 opening rout of the Dodgers. The players were silent and gloomy as they slowly peeled off their uniforms.

Sox starter Bob Shaw, who pitched two home run balls to Charley Neal and one to pinch-hitter Chuck Essegian, rued the fact that "my timing was off."

"Shaw is a low ball pitcher and he wasn't getting his pitches down," said Lollar.

Ted Kluszewski injected a bit of humor in an otherwise stilted atmosphere. Somebody congratulated him for his leaping, one-handed stab of Junior Gilliam's liner in the fifth inning.

"The trouble with you sports writers is that you don't realize I've been a good glove man for a couple of years," said Klu.

'Man, This Is Different From The Regular Season,' Says Star Charlie Neal

By CHARLES MAHER
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—Charlie Neal a skinny little guy with arms no bigger than his bat, was standing quietly in the limelight occupied Thursday by a man nearly twice his size.

Neal, who looks as though he might need the wind behind him to drive the ball over the infield, had just belted two mighty home runs—the second of which made the difference in the Dodgers' 4-3 victory over Chicago.

"Man, this is different from the regular season," said Neal. "This is for the big money.

"I wasn't thinking when I hit that second one that it might win the game, but I was sure glad to see it go. I knew we'd need some runs against these guys.

"Yes, that was one of the biggest thrills of my career."

On the perimeter of the gang of reporters throwing questions at the 155-pound second baseman was Coach Chuck Dressen, who has been giving Neal some batting tips this season.

Dressen said Neal had a weakness, but Chuck wouldn't say what it was until a newsman suggested: "A fast ball, high and inside."

"Yeah," said Dressen. "I had him tape the end of his bat, so he couldn't get his hands down so far. Now he doesn't have such a long bat and he can hit those high inside pitches better."

Standing next to Ted Kluszewski, the enormous first baseman who hit two homers for Chicago Thursday, Neal would need only a slingshot to give a perfect impersonation of David in the story of Goliath's demise.

But there was no question of the authority in the little fellow's home runs Friday.

Left-hander Johnny Podres, who got the victory Friday although he was pulled for a pinch hitter in the seventh, had trouble getting started as usual. The Sox got to him for two runs in the opening inning.

"I don't know what it is about that first inning," Johnny said. "It's been a jinx for me all through my career.

TV NEWS

by DON SHUMAKER

"77 Sunset Strip" built a sizable adult audience soon after the series was launched, then seemed to catch fire with younger watchers through Edward Byrnes' (Kookie) efforts to aid the seasoned private eyes and, at the same time, keep his hair combed. This continent-wide enthusiastic approval of Kookie by the teenage audience was instrumental in his raise to equal star billing with Efrem Zimbalist and Roger Smith. Ed Byrnes is by no stretch of the imagination a beatnik, nor given to any of the off-beat, downbeat, slothful habits of that cult. He is an earnest, well-spoken, clean-living youth who knows exactly where he is going. But the "going" has been so fast of late that he—and his Warner Bros. bosses—are admittedly a bit dazzled by the turn of events. First, his fan mail climbed to the point where he began to draw more than any other contract player on the lot. Then he recorded the "classic" titled "Kookie, Lend Me Your Comb." Next the studio awarded him a featured role in the color production, "Yellowstone Kelly," starring Clint Walker. His first professional acting job was in 1951. In his next job he carried a spear in a stage production of "Hamlet" and received $5 a performance. Then followed six years of mostly minor acting roles. So Kookie's present big success didn't "just happen" the way was paved with years of effort.

The success of RCA Victor TV sets didn't "just happen" either; it's the result of many years of research by some of the finest electronic engineers in the world. When you buy RCA Victor products you are assured of excellent performance. The nice thing about it is that it costs no more to buy the best. Visit our showrooms for a demonstration soon.
